Thank you to Father Boroughs for generously giving his time to pose for our first-in-a-series READ poster for the Holy Cross campus.

A message from our director:

The start of the semester is filled with so many new things. New students roam the halls. New faculty are welcomed by colleagues. And a new directory tells us where all the various offices have moved to over the summer. There is NEW in the library as well. We have new librarians who are eager to learn more about the work of the faculty and discover how they can support research and instruction here at Holy Cross. Monica Locker and Judith Nagata bring talents to the library that we hope will prove beneficial to all of the Holy Cross community. We have also added new (or expanded) resources that we know will be beneficial. Take time to speak with one of our librarians to learn more about these resources, and also to let us know of other new things we should consider adding. After having completed my first full year here, I am no longer new, but I am no less excited about this coming year than I was last year. Please let us know how we can help, and have a great semester.

Mark Shelton, Director of Library Services

New staff:

Monica Locker is our Assessment, Teaching & Learning Librarian. She is responsible for assessing the learning outcomes of our Research, Teaching & Learning Department, collaborating with the college's Office of Assessment, and helping students and faculty with data literacy. She will serve as liaison to Economics & Accounting, Political Science, English, and Legal Studies. She is also the new Cluster Librarian for Montserrat's Contemporary Challenges.

Judith Nagata is our new Content Strategist. Her responsibilities include coordinating the management and assessment of our subscription-based print and electronic resources. Judith comes to us most recently from Coastal Carolina University in Conway, South Carolina, where she was the Electronic Resources Librarian.

Student Research in CrossWorks

Did you serve as a faculty advisor this summer? Encourage your students to consider submitting their summer research poster to CrossWorks, the College's institutional repository, for inclusion in the Undergraduate Summer Research Symposium series. Posting in CrossWorks provides long-term preservation, accessibility and increased visibility.

OA Movie Night

"The award-winning film "The Internet's Own Boy" will be shown during Open Access Week (Oct. 24 ~ 7pm ~ Seelos Theatre). The interdisciplinary elements of this film speak to multiple departments: computer science, information science/studies, law, ethics, and social activism, and it explores the concept of information as power. We hope you encourage your students to attend.

The library is happy to participate in the movement for affordable textbook options for Holy Cross students.

We may be able to place large and commonly used textbooks on reserve. If there are any crucial course books that you would like to have on reserve, the library can look into purchasing a copy for the library collection. If you have a personal copy of the coursebook, the library can place that on reserve as well.

Also, please note that the library recently purchased the Springer e-book package, with access to
