Record Group: 10, House/Community/Parish Records

Name of Collection: Immaculate Conception Church, South End, Boston, MA

Record Group: 10.9 ICC

Size of collection: 25-5" boxes + 4-2.5" boxes = 13.5 linear feet

Dates of Collection: 1865-1997

Historical Background:

Rev. John McElroy purchased the site on Harrison Avenue in the South End from the City of Boston for a church, school and Jesuit residence in 1858. Construction began on the Church of the Immaculate Conception in 1858 on what is now the corner of Harrison Avenue and East Concord Street. The back of the church abuts James, later renamed Fr. Gilday Street. The church was dedicated on March 10, 1861 by Bishop Fitzpatrick as a collegiate church, a place of worship for Boston College.

The church was designed in the style of the Italian Renaissance Revival by Patrick Charles Keely. It is built of white New Hampshire granite. The exterior of the church was designated an historical landmark as part of the South End Landmark District in 1983 by the Boston Landmarks Commission. The interior design, particularly noted for its spacious openness and ornate plaster work, is considered to be the work of Arthur Gilman, the architect responsible for crafting the master plan of Boston's Back Bay neighborhood. The organ was built by Elias and George Greenleaf Hook in 1863 and rebuilt by E.&G.G. Hook & Hastings in 1902. The walnut case holding the pipe work was designed by architect Patrick Charles Keely.

Immaculate Conception Church was the church for Boston College, and then Boston College High School, from 1863 until the 1960s. During this time, although not a parish church, Immaculate Conception also served the pastoral needs of the surrounding neighborhoods.

By the 1940s enrollment in Boston College High School had grown beyond the capacity of the existing outdated facility. In 1948 land was purchased on Columbia Point in Dorchester for a new Boston College High School campus. Over the next decade, the students, administration and faculty of the school made the transition to the Dorchester campus. Immaculate Conception Church and the old Boston College High School facilities continued to be used for school functions through the 1960s. Renovations were made to the facilities for the Centennial Celebration in 1961.

The Provincial Offices of the New England Province moved to Harrison Avenue in 1981. In the late 1980s, Immaculate Conception Church became part of The Jesuit Urban Center, an apostolate focusing on pastoral work, with clergy and members of the community collaborating to work toward justice through faith. Renovations planned to adapt the buildings for new uses initiated a dispute between the Jesuits and historic preservationists who attempted to apply landmark designation to the interior of the church. This dispute was finally settled by a decision of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court that found that the constitutional rights of the Jesuits were violated by the attempts to prevent renovations. In the meantime, negotiations between the Province and preservations resulted in an approved plan for the renovations. A small “link” building was constructed between the old Jesuit residence and Immaculate Conception Church to serve the Province Curia Administration. The interior of the church was renovated to have both worship and gathering space as well as offices for the Jesuit Urban Center staff.

In the early 1990s, a section of the old college building was renovated as living quarters for the staff. The former Jesuit residence was converted into apartments for Boston University medical students and became the property of the Boston University Medical School. The Province Curia moved out in 2003, relocating the administrative offices to Watertown, MA. The Province sold a large section of the old college building in 2003.

As of April 20, 2007, the Jesuits ceased offering daily masses at Immaculate Conception Church and running any programs out of the Jesuit Urban Center. The last Sunday Mass was celebrated July 29, 2007. In 2013, the building was sold to a developer who planned to create residential space, see NEN Memo 2013/11, May 22, 2013.

Scope and Content Note:

The collection contains Church Announcement Books (1880-1929), bound Church Calendars (1893-1961) and some other loose issues, Church Diaries (1898-1966), other record books, such as, the Vow book for Boston College and the other Boston residences: Holy Trinity Church and St. Mary's Church (1848-1948), financial record book (1922-1931), the records of the Liturgical Choir (1934-1939) and a menu binder of the Jesuit Residence (1962-1968). Several scrapbooks of newspaper clippings are included, covering most of the history of the church from 1883-1991. The older scrapbooks are quite fragile and are stored with other oversize scrapbooks in RG 12 Audiovisual, Scrapbooks. Use the preservation photocopies included in this record group for research. Two of the clippings scrapbooks document the dispute over landmark designation of the interior of the church (1986-1991). There are several folders related to the history of the church. Office files include information about the building, the organ, and the stained glass windows of the lower church, some historical financial information, and some information about the Jesuit Community. The collection also includes the records of two related organizations: the Catholic Alumni Sodality of Boston, founded 1899, and the St. Vincent de Paul Society. There are histories and newsletters from the Catholic Alumni Sodality. Bound volumes of newsletters from 1949 to 1961 are complete runs. There are also audio recordings of Catholic Alumni Sodality programs in RG 12 Audiovisual. The Conference Records of the St. Vincent de Paul Society are the recording secretaries meeting reports for the years 1866-1929. There is also a ledger book from 1866-1867. Both organizations engaged in devotions, charitable work and fund raising activities.

The typescript "History of Boston and Immaculate Conception Church" compiled by Fr. John W. Lynch, S.J., the house historian during the 1960s, contains a chronology of the Church, and a partial index to biographies and other articles published in the Church Calendars, see following pages. The Church Calendar for the Centennial year, 1961, contains many articles about the history of the church, related organizations and the building.
