Burke Confirmed As Commissioner of Agriculture

BOSTON—Howard Haynes Burke of Osterville was yesterday confirmed by the executive council as commissioner of agriculture, to succeed Edgar L. Gillett of Canton, formerly of Westfield, by vote of 6 to 3 on straight party lines. He was given the oath of office at once by the governor.

"I don't want to put anyone out of a job for Christmas."

Mourning Displaces Christmas Happiness In Home of Widow and Six Children of Victim as Police Hunt Two Convicts

BOSTON, Dec. 24—Search for two fugitive criminals who murdered their guard continued tonight as the sombre trappings of mourning displaced the bright ornaments of Christmas in the home of the widow and six children of their victim.

While plans were made to place the body of Walter Doucette, 45, state prison guard, in its last resting place, a price was put upon the heads of Edward Guarnelli, 26, and Antonio Repucci 25 the two convicts who overpowered and shot him to death as he was taking them to prison last night. Rewards of $1000 for the taking of each of the fugitives, dead or alive, were offered by Governor James M. Curley on behalf of the state.

Warrants were issued charging the convicts with murder and District Attorney William J. Foley announced indictments on the same charges would be asked of a grand jury Monday.

Doucette was slain, with his own pistol, as he was taking the pair in a taxi back to state prison, where they were serving 10 to 12 years for burglary. They had been taken from the prison to Danvers Superior court to face charges of breaking and entering and had just received additional sentences of six months each.

Slaying of the guard brought expressions of indignation that only one guard had been assigned to two prisoners for transportation in public vehicles and was responsible for an immediate change in the system of handling prisoners.

Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of correction, announced that "never again will only one guard be sent out with two prisoners."

Lyman said such practice had been followed many years.

"The only thing I can say," he explained, "is that it has always been the custom to send but one guard along with either one or two convicts."

Names His Slayer

Before his life ebbed away in City Hospital, Doucette, who was shot in the abdomen, named Repucci as the convict who shot him.

"I am sure of this because I know both men well; it was Repucci who fired the shot," District Attorney Foley quoted the dying guard as saying.

Search for the fugitives was extended tonight as evidence indicated the men had left the North End section of the city, into which they disappeared after the shooting. The guard's pistol was recovered in Everett, nearby city in which both men formerly resided. A restaurant keeper told police he took the pistol away from Guarnelli last night when the latter came in threatening to "shoot it out" with any policeman.

A report the men were seen in Falmouth was under investigation.

Both fugitives have long records of previous convictions.

Late tonight, on information furnished by Gloucester police, three Boston police detectives rushed to that city. The information, they said, indicated the fugitives might be in hiding in the Italian section of Gloucester.

Lieutenant Edward J. Keating and Inspectors Louis Di Sessa and Joseph Marshall, the Boston officers, left by automobile.

A search by 20 other officers, of which seven in the West End, occupied by a relative of Repucci, failed to reveal any trace of the pair.
Committee Representing Trustees and President Eames Confers in Hub.

A committee representing the trustees of the Lowell Textile Institute, President Charles H. Eames of the institute and a group of legislators from this city, conferred with Governor James M. Curley yesterday relative to the possibility of securing an addition to the buildings housing the chemistry department at the institute.

The proposed addition would be on the easterly side of the institute buildings and would cost approximately $150,000. It is proposed that it be constructed by the state as one of its projects to be carried out on federal funds. Governor Curley promised to consider the matter.

The trustees were represented by Charles W. Churchill, Thomas T. Clark and Charles J. McCarty. The legislators included Senator William F. McCarthy and Representative Thomas A. Delmore, George T. Ashe, Albert Bergeron, Albert L. Bourgeois and Frank E. MacLea.

W. R. C. Election

Mrs. Alice E. Pease was chosen president of the B. F. Jones Women's Relief corps at the annual election of officers in the Relief corps rooms in Legion hall last Wednesday night. Mrs. Clara Hamblin was elected senior vice-president and Mrs. Ada Wixon, junior vice-president.

Other officers are: Mrs. Lura Randall, treasurer; Mrs. Angie Cahoont, chaplain; Mrs. Clara Hamblin, conductress; Mrs. Alice E. Pease, delegate to the department convention; and Mrs. Ada Wixon, alternate to convention. Appointive officers will be named at a later date by the president. Installation will be Jan. 15.

At a Christmas party following the election, members exchanged gifts and carols were sung. Mrs. Lena Studley and her committee served refreshments.

Injured in Accident

Alfred Holmes, who was injured in an automobile accident on Wednesday in North Falmouth, and was on the danger list at the Cape Cod Hospital for several days, is now reported as improving and on the road to recovery. With him at the time of the accident were A. L. Ames of Locust street, and Leonard Blumberg of Quissett. Mr. Blumberg, who with Mr. Holmes was taken to the hospital in the ambulance from the Pocasset hospital, was discharged on Friday, but was suffering with a strained back and Mr. Ames suffered a strained back and minor injuries.

Mr. Holmes, who with Mrs. Holmes, lives with Mr. Ames, is from New York city. He was driving his own car, police say, when a small truck, operated by Charles Corroda of New Bedford, but across in front of him, swung into the Rege Yard. Mr. Holmes struck the truck a glancing blow and his sedan overturned and slid on its side for several feet on a bank. Dr. H. O. Hunt of North Falmouth treated the men and sent them to the hospital. The sedan was almost completely wrecked but the truck was only slightly damaged.

The accident occurred near the junction of the new and old State roads.

O. E. S. Election

Election of officers and the annual Christmas tree party were held Thursday night at Masonic hall, when Mrs. Oscar S. Lefevre of Maravista was elected to the office of worthy matron of Goodwill chapter, No. 123, Order of Eastern Star.

The entire slate of officers will not be complete until the night of installation, Monday, January 27, when the worthy matron appoints her assistants.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. Samuel T. Smith, associate matron; Charles N. Holden, worthy patron; Ray D. Wells, associate patron; Mrs. Ralph Nickerson, conductress; Mrs. Oscar S. Simpson, associate conductress; Mrs. W. Arlton Turner, secretary, and Mrs. J. Edward Nickerson, treasurer.

The chairman of the Christmas plans was Mrs. John Ellery, with Mrs. Harold Underwood as chairman, and Mrs. John C. Moore assistant, on refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Morrison and two children have gone to Durham, N. H., to spend Christmas with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin A. Morrison. They plan to make this a double celebration while there, when they honor Mr. Morrison's parents on their 50th wedding anniversary. The older couple, both of whom are 72 years of age, are in good health. They plan to have only relatives of the couple attend a dinner, for although Mrs. Morrison's health is good, she does not stand much excitement. Mr. Morrison is their only child.

Vattier Snyder has gone to spend Christmas day in Bloomfield, N. J., with his daughter, Dean Winkle, where Mrs. Snyder has been since last week. Mrs. Snyder's duties bring him home Thursday, while Mrs. Snyder will return next week.

Mrs. Reuben P. Hamblin spent Saturday and Sunday in Dorchester, as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Marshall.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip H. Richardson of Nutley, N. J., are spending Christmas with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Wiswall.

Mrs. Flora Nightingale entertained the Fahneta Sewing circle at her home at the Heights all day Friday.

William Hatch is in Boston for two weeks, visiting relatives.

The Floyd M. Soule family have moved from Falmouth to the Carrie Douglas house in Woods Hole. Selectman Charles R. Stowers and Mrs. Stowers are spending Christmas in North Easton, with her father, Frank Eames. Their niece, Dorothy Rogers, who makes her home with them in Quissett, is spending the holidays in Needham with her father, Alexander Rogers.

War of Orleans.

A Pyromaniac

Gov. Curley acted wisely on Monday in temporarily withdrawing from the executive council his recommendation that a sentence of 10 to 12 years against Henry A. Gardner, Worcester "firebug", be commuted to four to 12 years—a step which would have made Gardner eligible for parole.

Previously Gov. Curley had spoken blusteringly about those who opposed this commutation. He had seen fit to deliver a brief sermon on the Christian virtue of forgiveness—a sermon which was supposed to have added piquancy from the fact that members of one Worcester church were especially opposed to the liberation of Gardner. The issue, however, was not one of forgiveness, but of public protection. This issue was presented so clearly on Monday by Dist-Att'y Hoban of Worcester county and by other remonstrants that Gov. Curley announced withdrawal of the recommendation.

Gardner burned two churches in Worcester—one belonging to the Pleasant Street Baptist society and the other to the familiar edifice of All Saints. He burned a number of other buildings. While he was at large there was virtually "a reign of terror" in Worcester and surrounding towns, as was said at the hearing in Boston on Monday.

Gardner's conduct showed that he had a real mania for setting fires. But this mania affected him only when he was intoxicated. There was no evidence of deliberate and wanton destruction. He has been a good prisoner, and the prison authorities and the commissioner of correction approved the recommended commutation. But the people of Worcester, and especially those who suffered through his strange conduct, want to know what assurance there is that he will not resume his destructive ways.

As Dist-Att'y Hoban advised, Gardner will be examined by psychiatrists. Whether or not psychiatry is able to render an exhaustive analysis, the governor and council will be well advised in deciding the question of commutation as a matter of public safety.
State Will Send Cheer To 35,000 of Its Wards

Tons of Turkey, Candy and Other Good Things Will Be Served to Inmates of State Institutions—State House Has 1000 Candles

From Our Special Reporter

Boston, Dec. 24—Cheer and material things to help make a merry Christmas will be provided by the Commonwealth this year to approximately 35,000 sick and unfortunate men, women and children, patients of state hospitals and institutions.

This means tons and tons of turkey, candy, delicacies of all kinds, decorations for hundreds of Christmas trees in hospital wards, and, in many cases, special gifts for those who have no kin to remember them Christmas morning.

1000 Candles in State House

The State House itself, with more than 1000 electric candles gleaming from its windows, and an eight-foot wreath adorning the Bulfinch front, typifies the Commonwealth's devotion to its duty of propagating the Christmas among all its citizens.

The custom of gifts and parties in departments is being replaced this year in most of them by the filling and distribution of Christmas baskets for the needy. State House employees were dismissed today at noon, leaving only skeleton forces on duty.

Gov. James M. Curley wrote a special Christmas message which will appear on the Christmas programs at all state institutions, reading:

"As governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, it is an exceeding pleasure to extend to you and your family sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and a most happy New Year.

"May Jesus bless you and your family enjoying health, happiness and all of God's choicest blessings."

(Signed) "JAMES M. CURLEY."

State Hospital Menu

Turkey, of course, is the feature of the Christmas menu at all except penal institutions under state control. Here is a representative menu, this one being prepared for the patients of the Taunton state hospital which is under the department of mental diseases:

Celery, pickles, roast turkey, dressing, mashed creamed potatoes, giblet gravy, boiled onions, squash, cranberry sauce, mince or pumpkin pie, plum pudding, custard sauce, cheese, candy, fruit, nuts, cider, dates, figs and favors.

Santa Claus has been invited to visit every one of the 300 children at the state hospital school at Canton and other children's institutions. None will be neglected.

Dr. Ralph M. Chambers, superintendent of the Taunton state hospital, issued a warning to relatives and friends of those, especially children, in state institutions for the mentally ill. He said a large share of a patient's or a pupil's happiness is centered around the anticipation of gifts from home. Much is done at the schools and hospitals but they cannot supply home in their affections. He stressed the importance of having all gifts from home and from friends at the various institutions tomorrow morning.

At state prison, the 900-odd prisoners will be provided with this menu:

Roast pork, squash, potato, coffee, mince pie.
LIFE PRISONERS FREED; TWO FROM HAMPDEN COUNTY

From Our Special Reporter

Boston, Dec. 24—Two women, one living in Harlem and the other in Burlington, Vt., came to the aid of two state prison lifers from Hampden county when they left the State House this afternoon, freed by Gov. Curley and the executive council from prison, where they had been sentenced after murdering their wives.

The two men are Samuel Powers of Springfield and Morris Levine of Holyoke. Powers was committed in 1914, after killing his wife at their Ferry street home in a jealous rage. Levine was committed in 1928 after having stabbed his wife to death in their Holyoke home during an argument.

Levine to Live With Sister

Levine will go to Burlington, Vt., to spend the rest of his life at the home of his sister, While Powers, a Negro aged 67, will go to New York city to live with a married sister and her husband.

Levine was pardoned because of physical ailments and of them said this afternoon: "That is so, but I'm still able to do the work that is expected of me." He was high in his praise of the manner in which Norfolk prison colony is conducted, having been there four months.

"They treat you so well and so much like as though you were worthy of consideration that you just couldn't go wrong again," he declared. "And I want to say that much of this is due to the manner in which the prison is conducted by Supt. Maurice Winslow and Deputy John O'Brien. They're wonderful men."

Powers, who is 46, was delighted with his opportunity to start life afresh and grinned broadly while at the State house. "Believe me, it's going to be a happy Christmas for me," he remarked. "Just as soon as I learn that I had been given a pardon, my sister, who runs a beauty shop down in Harlem, got in touch with me. In turn, she told me that as soon as I got out, to take the first train there and that when I arrived, she would help me to set up in business. Isn't that a break?"

Curley Speaks to Men

Greeting the six whom he pardoned, Gov. Curley said:

"Christmas conveys to every right-thinking person 'peace on earth, good will to men.' The commonwealth has exemplified its belief in that by granting a pardon to you men. On the eve of the birthday of Christ, you are being returned to your families and your friends. How long you remain with them depends entirely on yourselves.

"Obey the laws and you will be safe. If you violate the laws, you must suffer the penalties. There is one thing I want you to remember and that is that the old law of compensation never sleeps—it always works. If you do good deeds you will be rewarded. If you do evil deeds, you will never escape punishment."

"It is entirely up to you to recognize your duty to society. Do it in the real way, the honest way, the Christian way. Remember your obligations to all others. May God guide you so that you will conduct yourselves as ornaments to society, rather than otherwise."

The other prisoners freed today are:

William Hooper of Lynn, sentenced March 24, 1933, to six to seven years for manslaughter. Sentence commuted to one of three to seven years.

Thomas J. Panetta of Cambridge, sentenced June 19, 1929, to 12 to 20 years for manslaughter; shot Dominic Somerelli. Sentence commuted to one of seven to 20 years.

Joseph Trinkatch of Worcester, sentenced in 1928 to 15 to 18 years for stealing $30. Sentence commuted to one of 11 to 15 years.

William G. Henry of Dorchester, sentenced June 5, 1934, to three to live years for larceny of $7,000 from Minot Cooperative Bank of Dorchester.

Chairman Richard Olney of the parole board said the seven prisoners pardoned were selected from a group of 40 recommended to the governor and council by the parole board for their consideration and selection.

Wojciech Brusz of Salem, the third life pardoned, having served 15 years for killing Mary B. Lavole, was not at the State House because he is an alien and must be deported.

ARCHBISHOP PAYS VISIT TO GOV CURLEY

From Our Special Reporter

Boston, Dec. 24—His eminence, Theodosius, archbishop of Tyre and Sidon, and delegate of the Patriarchate of Antioch, who is in this country to supervise the election of a bishop of the Syrian branch of the Greek Catholic church for North America and to install the newly-elected bishop in office, today visited the State House and paid his respects to Gov. Curley and Atty.-Gen., Paul A. Dever.

"They treat you so well and so much like as though you were worthy of consideration that you just couldn't go wrong again," he declared. "And I want to say that much of this is due to the manner in which the prison is conducted by Supt. Maurice Winslow and Deputy John O'Brien. They're wonderful men."

COMMONWEALTH WILL PLAY SANTA FOR 35,000 TODAY

Sick and Unfortunate of State Institutions Will Get Special Dinners and Gifts

(Special to The Springfield Union)

BOSTON, Dec. 24—Approximately 35,000 sick and unfortunate men, women and children, a sufficient number to populate a fair-sized town, will depend this year upon the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to provide them with both good cheer and material provision, which go to make up a merry Christmas. They are patients and inmates of State hospitals and institutions.

This means the purchase of tons and tons of turkey, candy, delicacies of all descriptions, also the buying of decorations for hundreds of Christmas trees for hospital wards and, in many cases, special gifts for those who have none of their own kin to remember them on Christmas morning. The Commonwealth has not been found wanting in its traditional duty to spread the spirit of Christmas throughout every hospital, school, prison and welfare institution in the State.

The State House itself, with more than 1000 electric candles gleaming from its windows and an eight-foot wreath adorning the Bullfinch Front directly under the cupola, typifies the Commonwealth's devotion to its duty of propagating the Christmas spirit among all its citizens.

Christmas parties and exchange of gifts, which has been the custom among employees of the various departments of the State House, are being replaced this year, for the most part, by the filing and distribution of Christmas baskets among the needy. State House employees were dismissed at noon today, with the exception of those who comprise a small operating force to keep the various departments open to the service of the public.

Gov. Curley wrote a special Christmas message which appears on the Christmas programs of the patients of State hospitals and the children in welfare institutions. It reads as follows:

"As Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, it is an exceeding pleasure to extend to you and your family sincere wishes for a Merry Christmas and a most Happy New Year.

"I sincerely trust that the program presented this day may bring some measure of joy upon this Christmas Day and that Christmas Day in 1936 will find you and your family enjoying health, happiness and all of God's choicest blessings."

Orders Mansfield Case Investigation

Curley's Move Raises Hope of Pardon. Newspaper Asserts

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 24 (AP)—The Standard Times says an investigation into the case of Herbert H. Mansfield, Jr., 19, has been ordered by the Governor's office, raising Mansfield's hopes for a pardon.

Mansfield, a Providence restaurant worker, pleaded guilty here Nov. 19 to charges of perjury and conspiracy to violate the marriage laws. He later petitioned Gov. Curley for a pardon. Mansfield is serving a jail term.

In June, Gloria Rego, 15, and Mansfield were married in Seekonk, the bride using the name of Vesta Jean Isherwood of Nantucket, who Mansfield had sought to marry. Miss Rego is on probation.

The newspaper quotes John H. Backus, secretary to the Governor and advisor in penal matters, as saying the inquiry has been launched "due to the unusual circumstances attached to the case and the contrary opinions expressed in reference to the disposition of the matter."

Governor Curley, one of the state's most distinguished golf addicts, was remembered today by his office staff just as the golfer liked to be remembered on Christmas. He was presented with sixty golf balls. Each staff member received ten silver dollars from the Governor. The Governor presented neckties to State House reporters.

The State Alcoholic Beverage Commission today ruled that all published or printed prices of alcoholic beverages shall give the brand name as it appears on the front or principal label of the container. The exact quantity to be sold for a specified price must be given.

Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, sent Christmas greetings to Governor Curley today.

In a letter he said:

"May the Child Jesus bless you and love you now and forever."

Friday night Governor Curley will be initiated into Theta Kappa Phi fraternity when the 10th annual convention of the organization opens in Hotel Manger. The Governor was made an honorary member of the organization when Lambda chapter of the fraternity was installed at Worcester Polytechnic Institute last month.

The Governor will open the convention. It will continue Saturday and Sunday at the University of New Hampshire, Durham, N. H. Gov. H. Styles Bridges of New Hampshire is expected to address the convention.

Among the 242 bills and resolves which had been filed up to 5 p.m. tonight:

The Massachusetts Federation of Labor filed a resolve to ratify the proposed child labor amendment to the Constitution. A similar resolve was beaten in the Legislature this year.

A resolve asking Congress for legislation forbidding employment of women in industrial plants after 6 o'clock at night was filed by Rep. Leo E. J. Carney of New Bedford.

Organizations to give legal assistance would be authorized to practice law under a bill filed by Rep. David A. Rose of Boston.

The State Federation of Labor filed for legislation to fix the compulsory age for school children at 16 years instead of 14 years.

MOURNING REPLACES YULETIDE

Spirit in Doucette’s Home: State Offers $1000 Rewards

BOSTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—Search for two fugitive criminals who murdered their guard continued tonight as somber trappings of mourning displaced bright ornaments of Christmas in the home of the widow and six children of their victim.

While plans were made to place the body of Walter Doucette, 45, State prison guard, in its last resting place, a price was put upon the heads of Edward Guarnelli, 26, and Antonio Repucci, 23, the two convicts who overpowered and shot him to death as he was taking them to the prison last night.

Rewards Offered

Rewards of $1000 each for the fugitives, dead or alive, were offered by Gov. James M. Curley on behalf of the State.

Warrants were issued charging the convicts with murder and Dist. Atty. William J. Foley announced indictments would be asked of a grand jury Monday.

Doucette was slain, with his own pistol, as he was taking the pair in a taxi cab back to State prison, where they were serving 10 to 12 years for their victim.

Both fugitives have long records of previous convictions.

Search Is Extended

Search for the fugitives was extended tonight as evidence indicated the men had left the North End section of the city, into which they disappeared after the shooting. The guard’s pistol was recovered in Everett, nearby city in which both men formerly resided.

A restaurant keeper told police he took the pistol away from Guarnelli last night when the latter came threatening to “shoot it out” with any policeman. A report the men were seen in Framingham was under investigation.

Lyman said such practice had been followed many years.

“The only thing I can say,” he explained, “is that it has always been the custom to send but one guard along with either one or two convicts.”

Before his life ebbed away in City Hospital, Doucette, who was shot in the abdomen, named Repucci as the convict who shot him.

“I am sure of this because I know both men well; it was Repucci who fired the shot,” Dist. Atty. Foley quoted the dying guard as saying.

Several criminals who murdered their guard continued tonight as somber trappings of mourning displaced bright ornaments of Christmas in the home of the widow and six children of their victim.

While plans were made to place the body of Walter Doucette, 45, State prison guard, in its last resting place, a price was put upon the heads of Edward Guarnelli, 26, and Antonio Repucci, 23, the two convicts who overpowered and shot him to death as he was taking them to the prison last night.

Rewards Offered

Rewards of $1000 each for the fugitives, dead or alive, were offered by Gov. James M. Curley on behalf of the State.

Warrants were issued charging the convicts with murder and Dist. Atty. William J. Foley announced indictments would be asked of a grand jury Monday.

Doucette was slain, with his own pistol, as he was taking the pair in a taxi cab back to State prison, where they were serving 10 to 12 years for their victim.

Both fugitives have long records of previous convictions.

Search Is Extended

Search for the fugitives was extended tonight as evidence indicated the men had left the North End section of the city, into which they disappeared after the shooting. The guard’s pistol was recovered in Everett, nearby city in which both men formerly resided.

A restaurant keeper told police he took the pistol away from Guarnelli last night when the latter came threatening to “shoot it out” with any policeman. A report the men were seen in Framingham was under investigation.

Both fugitives have long records of previous convictions.

Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of correction, announced that “never again will only one guard be sent out with two prisoners.”

Lyman said such practice had been followed many years.

“The only thing I can say,” he explained, “is that it has always been the custom to send but one guard along with either one or two convicts.”

Before his life ebbed away in City Hospital, Doucette, who was shot in the abdomen, named Repucci as the convict who shot him.

“I am sure of this because I know both men well; it was Repucci who fired the shot,” Dist. Atty. Foley quoted the dying guard as saying.

JOY AT HOSPITALS

Carolers Spread Message Of Festive Season; Churches Filled

Uncle Ray of Radio Station WTAG will attend some of the parties. Last night at several hospitals, nurses or Girl Scouts sang carols in the corridors.

In the churches too, carols early started the celebration of the holiday of joy. Many Protestant churches sent carolers through their parishes last night, among them the Lake View Congregational Church, Pilgrim Congregational Church, Newton Square Baptist, Old South Pleasant Street Baptist and the Epworth League of Wesley M. E.

At midnight there were special masses in most Catholic Churches. Thousands of parents left their firesides, gay with Christmas tree and wreaths, to attend the services. From formal and informal parties came the younger people.

In Swedish Protestant churches the traditional Julotta services were scheduled for 5.30 this morning. Later in the day many Sunday schools will have their annual programs.

Episcopal churches of the city will observe Holy Communion this morning at several services.

Needy Are Remembered

Christmas became a reality for many through welfare agencies. Hundreds of turkeys and baskets of foodstuffs were distributed. The Salvation Army alone distributed 300 baskets, the piece de resistance of each of which was a turkey.

Today many charitable agencies will serve dinners to the homeless and the families-less.

Meanwhile, the children of hundreds of needy families will be remembered by the Young Men's Democratic Club. Some 1200 youngsters from the Millbury street and Kelly square district will be guests of the club at the Rialto Theater.

Ahead of Easter

One shoe store manager reported, for example, that his Christmas business—and Christmas isn't ordinarily shoe-buying time, he interjected — had been far ahead of his Easter business.

Tired clerks went home early last night, at 7 p.m., tired from a busy week despite the added force of clerks that had been hired for the holiday rush. Notably larger numbers of extra help were hired temporarily this year.

Many of these clerks went home last night with another tangible indication of better business cracking in their pockets — for Christmas bonuses were commoner and larger.

Meanwhile, at the Norton Co., a tradition of many years standing was carried on. A crowd of three thousand employees formed in long lines at the company's plant, and each one was presented a turkey, the company's Christmas present to them. The birds' weights ranged from 10 to 20 pounds, depending on the size of the recipient's family.
WESTFIELD AND HOLYOKE LIFERS LEAVE PRISON

Both Happy to Gain Freedom; Each Will Be Given Assistance by Sister.

(Special to The Springfield Union)

BOSTON, Dec. 24—Two women, one living in New York City and the other in Burlington, Vt., will come to the assistance of two State prison lifers who were given Christmas pardons by Gov. Curley and freed this afternoon. Both men were convicted of murdering their wives.

The two are Samuel Powers of Westfield and Morris Levine of Holyoke, the former having been committed in 1914 and the latter in 1922. Levine will go to Burlington to spend the rest of his life in the home of his sister, while Powers, a Negro, will go to New York, where he will be aided by a sister, Levine, now 67 years of age, was pardoned because of his physical condition. He is suffering from a bad heart and kidney trouble.

"That is so," he remarked today, "but I'm still able to do a good job of painting and am sure that I can find plenty to do up in Burlington. I lived there for about 11 years and will be overjoyed to get back there again."

Levine was high in his praises of the manner in which the Norfolk State Prison colony is conducted. He had been there for four months.

"They treat you so well and so much like you were worthy of consideration that you just couldn't go wrong again," he declared. "And I want to say that much of this is due to the manner in which the prison is conducted by Supt. Maurice Winslow and Deputy John O'Brien. There are wonderful men."

Powers, 46 years old, was delighted with his opportunity of starting life afresh.

"Believe me it's going to be a happy Christmas Day for me," he remarked. Wojczech Nirusz of Salem, the third lifer pardoned, after serving 15 years for the killing of Mary B. Lavole, was not at the State House. He is an alien and must be deported to Poland. Five other prisoners also were freed.

Greetings the released prisoners Gov. Curley said:

"Christmas conveys to every right thinking person peace on earth, to men of good will. The commonwealth has exemplified its belief in that by granting a pardon to you men. On the eve of the birthday of Christ you are being returned to your families and your friends. How long you remain with them depends entirely upon you. Obey the laws and you will be safe. If you violate the laws you must suffer the penalties. There is one thing I want you to remember, and that is that the old law of compensation never sleeps. It always works. If you do good deeds you will be rewarded. If you do evil deeds you will never escape punishment."
GREETING TO CURLEY FROM FR COUGHLIN

Gov Curley received a letter of Christmas greeting from Rev Charles E. Coughlin, Michigan, radio priest, and a call from Archbishop Theodosius of the Syrian archdiocese in America, yesterday.

The Archbishop was accompanied by a delegation of Syrian Church officials and by Archpriest Basil M. Kirbys of Brooklyn, who acted as interpreter.

Fr Coughlin's letter read:

"My dear Gov Jim:

"May I intrude upon you for a moment to wish you and your loved ones a holy and happy Christmas. "May the child Jesus bless you and love you now and forever. Cordially yours."

VOLUNTEERS OF AMERICA PROVIDE DINNER FOR OLD FOLKS, CHRISTMAS FOOD FOR NEEDY

Gov Curley, "toastmaster," yesterday afternoon gave out the first basket of good things, at a dinner at 25 Hanover st, furnished by the Volunteers of America. It was an "old folks' party" and almost everybody sitting down to the table was more than 70. One man was 89. Another, 80, was accompanied by his daughter, 60.

Gov Curley was unable to arrive at the time appointed, but, when he asked permission by telephone to arrive 15 minutes late, the old people shouted their willingness to wait, and they gave him an ovation when he did get there. He opened the proceedings with a short friendly speech, in which he gave the greetings of the State.

The dinner consisted of "high tea," chicken, turkey, and ham sandwiches, cake, jam, jelly, and ice cream. A musical entertainment was furnished by a number of artists, headed by Mme Rose Zulalian. At the end of the tables were two large decorated Christmas trees, on which there were presents for the old people, chiefly gloves, mittens, scarves or shawls, handkerchiefs, pipes and tobacco. Each received a decorated basket containing candy, tea, jam, jelly, oranges, apples, bananas, milk, butter, and cake. Each was also given a $1 bill with which to get their Christmas dinner, today.

Today the Volunteers will give a dinner to 250 unemployed men, with gifts of tobacco and cigars, donated by P. A. O'Connell. Another dinner will be enjoyed by mothers and their children at Theodosia House, with toys for the youngsters and a theatre party for the mothers.

Other Christmas activities include the distribution of toys, baskets and clothing to the families of prisoners, and a full-course dinner of roast pork served at the Penny Lunch today.

The entire program is under the direction of Col and Mrs Walter Duncan, while Mrs Mary MacNeill packed the baskets, assisted by Mrs Mary Sheehan and a committee of workers from patriotic societies.
EVERETT SCENE OF KILLER HUNT

Guard's Pistol Recovered
in Building There

Given Cane Man by Guarnelli—
‘Shoot to Kill’ Order Issued

The search for the convict killers, Anthony Repucci and Edward Guarnelli, is now centered in Everett, where the men are known to have been late Monday night after they killed a prison guard to gain their freedom.

Recovery of the guard’s pistol, from which Repucci is alleged to have fired the fatal shot, was made by Inspector Edward J. Dunn and Thomas F. McElaney of the Everett police early yesterday and started the detectives on the hot trail that may lead to the convicts’ capture.

Homes of the convicts and their friends in Everett were under guard and “Shoot to Kill” orders were in effect because Guarnelli is reported to have told a friend in Everett that he would kill any policemen who tried to capture him.

Gloucester Tip

Another tip that Repucci and Guarnelli were at a “hideout” in Gloucester was investigated by Lieut Inspectors Louis DiSessa and Detective John Marshall of the Boston police B. C. I.

Poolrooms and dining places in the west end of Gloucester were searched by Boston and Gloucester officers, but no clue found to the escaped convicts.

DiSessa led the Boston officers, including Marshal, Inspectors Robert E. Bowes and Hazen A. Chalmers and patrolmen James Collins, Herbert Grace and James McGann of the North-station, Capt Charles L. O’Malley headed the Gloucester detail.

A search was also made about the boats of the fishing fleet.

It had been reported that Guarnelli twice unsuccessfully attempted to contact Morrocco on Monday night.

Gov. James M. Curley yesterday offered a reward of $1,000 on behalf of the Commonwealth for the apprehension of Repucci and Guarnelli and spurred the aid to supplying “tips” as to the convicts’ whereabouts.

Inspectors Dunn and McElaney were praised by Boston police for their work in locating the guard’s gun and the weapon was identified by Sergt Seibolt as that used in the murder of prison guard Walter Doucette, who was slain by the convicts as they escaped on Commercial st., North End, just before 6 o’clock Monday night.

Guarnelli at Restaurant

Silvio Pace, 38, proprietor of the Lido Cafe at 153 Main st, Everett, told the officers that Guarnelli was in his restaurant about 7:30 Monday night and told him he had been “in a jam.” He showed the guard’s pistol to Pace. Guarnelli insisted Pace make a telephone call for him and Pace did so.

Then Pace argued him into giving up the pistol, telling him that he ought to be ashamed of himself for talking about shooting policemen who were only doing their duty.

He said that Guarnelli gave him the pistol to keep and said he would call for it yesterday. Pace told Abraham Itskovitch, 31, of 177 Main st., about the pistol and the latter concealed it in a vacant building near his home.

Dunn went into the West Everett section looking for Repucci and Guarnelli yesterday morning and encountered Itskovitch. He questioned him and the latter revealed the hiding place of the pistol.

Boston officers talked to both Itskovitch and Pace but neither was held.

The Everett police say that they believe the two convicts came here by El train and separated at Everett station, each one to seek out friends to help them individually.

Morrocco Questioned

Because they were suspicious of circumstances of the hasty departure of Thomas V. Morrocco, 35, of 201 Woodlawn st, Everett, from his home yesterday morning, Boston police questioned Morrocco at the Cranston, R I, police headquarters yesterday afternoon.

Morrocco, admitting friendship with the two convicts, said he had not seen or heard from the men since the shooting and gave what police said was an adequate explanation of what he did yesterday and why he went to Rhode Island.

Everett police said that they were informed that Guarnelli had twice attempted to contact Morrocco last night, once at Everett night club and the other time at Morrocco’s home, but had failed on both occasions.

Morrocco told Sergt James V. Crowley and Thomas Conaty of the Boston police, who questioned him at Cranston, that he spent the day calling around with Charles McEachern, a Boston fireman. He said that they visited several places during the day and were in the company of many friends. Morrocco is a World War veteran and was decorated for bravery in France.

Morrocco said he decided to go to Cranston and spend the holiday with his brothers, Joseph and Daniel, about 11 last night when he and McEachern returned to his home. Morrocco said his wife had suggested that he do so. McEachern drove Morrocco to Cranston and, after a few hours’ sleep, returned to Boston.

Knows Convicts Well

Repucci and Guarnelli are both well known to Morrocco. He said that he had aided their families at times but had never given them money.

Morrocco, a disabled veteran, said he had done some welfare work.

Morrocco is well known in Everett and was a candidate for the Common Council at one time.

He remained in Cranston after the questioning and the Boston officers went back to Boston and Everett for a routine check of his story. Morrocco was represented by Ex-Mayor Edward M. Sullivan of Cranston during the questioning. He did not return to Everett, he said, because he was ill and feared an intense questioning.

As a result of the murder of Walter R. Doucette by one of the two prisoners, Repucci or Guarnelli, Arthur T. Lyman, commissioner of correction ordered yesterday that hereafter two guards instead of one shall always accompany prisoners being taken from the state prison at Charlestown to courts. It has been the practice for 32 years to have prisoners on the way to court guarded by one officer but Monday night’s shooting, according to Mr Lyman, shows that a revision of the plan is necessary.

Coughlin Wishes Curley

‘Holy, Happy Christmas’

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, radio priest, yesterday wished Gov. Curley and his family “a holy and happy Christmas.”

Fr. Coughlin’s letter to the Governor follows:

“My dear Gov. Jim:

“My I intrude upon you for a moment to wish you and your loved ones a holy and happy Christmas.

HUNT CONVICTS AT GLOUCESTER
Slayers of Doucette Reported There Attempting To Leave Country
$1000 REWARD
SPURS SEARCH

Boston police last night went to Gloucester following a report that two escaped state prison convicts, Edward Guarnelli and Antonio Repucci, both of Everett, had sought refuge there. The convicts on Monday night killed Walter R. Doucette of 883 Columbia road, Dorchester, a state prison guard, who was taking them from Dedham superior court to the prison in Charlestown.

Lt. Joseph Di Sessa and Detective Joseph Marshall of the homicide squad, went to Gloucester, where it was believed that the convicts have been attempting to leave the country in a fishing vessel.

Sergt. Walter V. Crowley and Detective Thomas H. Connaty returned last night from Cranston, R. I., where they investigated a report that an Everett man who had gone to Rhode Island early Tuesday had been sought by one of the convicts in Everett an hour after the shooting.

$1000 REWARD OFFERED

Gov. Curley late yesterday authorized a reward of $1000 for the arrest of Guarnelli and Repucci, for whom murder warrants were issued yesterday by Judge Wilfred Boistes in municipal court. Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley said last night that he would ask the grand jury for murder indictments against the pair immediately.

The gun which was taken from Doucette by the convicts and which they turned on him with fatal effect was recovered in a pile of junk yesterday in Everett. After the finding of the gun, which is said to have been left in the beer parlor by Guarnelli, Abraham Itzkowitz of 177 Main street, Everett, and Silvio Pace, owner of the restaurant on Main street, Everett, were taken to Boston police headquarters and questioned by Lt.-Inspector John McCarthy of the homicide squad and later released.

A special guard was placed last night around the home of M. Edward Voitl, assistant district attorney of Norfolk county, who is said to have received threats from Repucci following his conviction with Guarnelli in Norfolk superior court of burglary in Brookline.

Doucette had been assigned to take the convicts from state prison, where they were serving long terms for robbery and burglary, to Dedham, where they had appealed their conviction and sentence of six months for the Brookline burglary. Returning, Doucette hired a cab and with the two convicts drove along Atlantic avenue. When the cab turned into Commercial street the convict turned on Doucette, took his gun away and after shooting him threw him out. He died at the City Hospital shortly after midnight Tuesday. He leaves a widow and six children, Virginia, 4; Julia, 6; Walter, 8; John, 14; May, 17, and Marguerite, 18. The funeral for Doucette, who was 43 years old, will probably be held tomorrow.

DEMAND CURLEY REMOVE GOODWIN

Haverhill Shoe Workers Attack Registrar

HAVERHILL, Dec. 24—A committee of shoe workers here sent a telegram today to Gov. Curley demanding the removal from office of Registrar Frank A. Goodwin because of his alleged intervention in local industrial affairs and "the misuse of his present high public office."

Goodwin, in speaking at a mass meeting of shoe operatives here Monday night, classed the Boot & Shoe Workers' Union of the A. F. of L. as a union not of workers but a union of manufacturers. His appearance complicated the labor situation here, in which the Boot and Shoe Workers claim that almost every operator has signed a Boot and Shoe Workers application and officials of the United Shoe & Leather Workers' Union, with which operatives here have hitherto been affiliated, maintain that reports of defections from their ranks are being exaggerated.

The telegram sent to the Governor charges the registrar with assail ing the American trade union movement and to have, by his actions, seriously threatened the industrial peace and industrial stability of the city. It is signed by a committee including Blanche R. Smith, Hugh J. Kelleher and Clarence R. Tracy.

As an aftermath of the above action, George Douglas, an organizer for the Haverhill office of A. F. of L. Boot & Shoe Workers Union, today announced the receipt of petitions from the employees of five of the largest wood heel manufacturing firms in the local industry asking membership in the boot and shoe organization.
PRISON FREES SIX ON PARDON

Seventh Man Remains in Cell with Prospect of Deportation

CURLEY GIVES ALL WARNING ON CRIME

Six of the seven state prisoners pardoned Monday by Gov. Curley and the executive council were released yesterday noon, while the seventh, an alien, remained behind, confronted with the prospect of being deported to his native land when freed.

Wojciech Birusz of Salem, the third lifer to be pardoned, remained behind pending arrangements for his deportation to Poland. In the event his native land declines to receive him it will be necessary for the Governor and council to grant him a full pardon instead of a pardon under parole conditions. With a full pardon he would be eligible to return to his native land.

Powers, 46-year-old Negro who has served 21 years for murder, expressed delight with the opportunity offered him to begin life anew. His sister, who operates a beauty parlor in the Harlem section of New York, has offered to set him up in business and he left by train for New York early in the afternoon.

The six men were greeted by Gov. Curley in the executive chamber after they had been released by the state board of parole. He admonished them to obey the laws.

In greeting the paroled men he said:

"Christmas conveys to every right thinking person 'Peace on earth to men of good will.' The commonwealth has exemplified its belief in that by granting pardons to you men. On the eve of the birthday of Christ you are being returned to your families and your friends. How long you remain with them depends entirely upon yourselves.

"Obey the laws and you will be safe. If you violate the laws you must suffer the penalties. There is one thing I want you to remember and that is that the old law of compensation never sleeps; it always works. If you do good deeds you will be rewarded. If you do evil deeds you will never escape punishment.

"It is entirely up to you to recognize your duty to society. Do it the real way, the honest way, the Christian way. Remember your obligation to all others. May God guide you so that you will conduct yourselves as ornaments to society rather than otherwise."

YULETIDE AT STATE HOUSE

A striking holiday wreath, a bit of clever photography by a Traveler camera man, Leslie Jones, and the dome of the State House and we have the spirit of Christmas atop Beacon Hill and an odd view. The camera was focused upward from the ground, through an archway, in the centre of which is the wreath. At first glance, it appears as if the cupola of the state capitol had sprouted a huge floral display.
Joy and Charity Joined in N. E. Christmas Celebration;
Old World Observes Day Under Darkening War Clouds

Thousands Return Home
To Mark Holiday at

ASSURED OF CHEER

The warmth and simplicity of the story of Bethlehem again found its way into the hearts of all New Englanders last night. The overpowering influence of Christmas manifested itself in one great homecoming.

The big parade along forest trails from 150 New England CCC camps brought 14,000 boys back to their parents last night. Fishermen hurried in from the wintry sea to join their family firesides. Students overflowed both train terminals in the process of either coming or going home.

And the joyous charity of the season found its way into the homes of the poor, into hospitals, prisons and lighthouses. It brought food and fuel to the impoverished and comfort to the isolated.

SANTA CLAUS REMEMBERS

In every Greater Boston institution last night it was a foregone conclusion that Santa Claus would remember every child, an the doors of public charities were thrown open at nightfall that thousands of men and women may not see Christmas in gloom and depression.

At 91 lighthouses along the New England coast, wildly excited children, coatless women and grizzled veterans of the sea ran out in near-zero weather to wave a welcome to Capt. William H. Wincapaw as he swooped down in his big cabin plane to drop a Yuletide bundle.

Within the city, thousands of persons received practical cheer from charitable organizations. At the Volunteers of America headquarters in Scollay square, 10,000 baskets, each containing food sufficient for eight persons for three days, were distributed.

The Volunteers also conducted a Christmas party yesterday for 300 men and women, all over 70 years of age. Besides a personal gift, each received $1 for a Christma dinner today. For the men there were tobacco and cigars donated by P. A. O'Connell, Gov. Curley and Lt.-Gov. Hurley attended the party. At midnight the Cross Nou-Phishon post of the American Legion had concluded its 11th annual Christmas basket distribution, which carried into more than 800 families of needy veterans approximately 2500 bags of food, toys, games and clothing.

4500 RECEIVE FOOD

In the past three nights of basket distribution, it was estimated by officials that more than 4500 persons were benefited by the charity.

The huge tonnage of food that makes an important part of the distribution was acknowledged by H. Lyman Armes, commander of the post. A chain store gave three tons of potatoes, another gave 1000 loaves of bread, 1000 pounds of coffee and 1000 dozens of doughnuts, he said.

At the Boston Industrial Home at 17 Davis street, a Christmas party was given last night for 200 home men and women, at which gifts were distributed by former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols. A similar number will be guests of the home at dinner today.

The police department also assumed the roles of blue-coated Santa Clauses, much to the delight of young residents of Roxbury. Patrolmen at the Dudley street station yesterday afternoon distributed re-conditioned toys to 150 children in the district.

Police Commissioner McSweeney attended the party at the station house and helped serve ice cream and cake to the children after the toys were distributed.

The municipal Christmas tree on the Common was lighted at 5:50 P. M. yesterday by Mayor Mansfield, marking the start of the city's official celebration of the holidays. Afterwards, the mayor delivered his Christmas greetings to the citizens of Boston from the Parkman bandstand.

Carol singing, Christmas tableaux and other entertainment continued at the bandstand and at the Frog pond until midnight.

As usual, Christmas charity entered Boston's hospitals, bringing toys and entertainment to hundreds of children. More than 1000 jig-saw puzzles will be distributed among patients of the Children's Hospital this morning as a gift from Walter E. Seaver, managing director of the Hotel Lenox.

Peter F. Tague, acting postmaster, late yesterday distributed checks and candy to charwomen and telephone operators employed at the federal building. The presentation was made in his office, and everyone received a two-pound box of candy.

The commonwealth will be more generous today with those in its hospitals than with its prison inmates. Turkey and all the fixings will be served in all institutions, except in prisons, where roast pork will be the principal dish.

Even the horse fared well in the Boston observance of Christmas. Because horses have been so exclusively displaced by motor trucks in Boston, the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals abandoned its custom of erecting a Christmas tree for Dobin in Post Office square.

Instead, a three horse hitch distributed a load of apples, carrots and other equine delicacies. The society's annual Christmas party is intended to impress upon the public its slogan, "Be Kind to Animals."

Countless parties were conducted in private homes throughout Greater Boston last night. As usual, Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson gave their annual Christmas party to the employees on their estate, Weld, at Avon street and Goddard avenue, Brookline.
CAROLS HERALD
CHRISTMAS DAY

75,000 Hear Singers as They Tour Beacon Hill in Traditional Manner to Welcome Great Day

GATHERING ORDERLY FOR CAROL SINGING

Not only was the Christmas gathering on Beacon Hill the largest in recent years, but it was also the most orderly, in the opinion of police officials. Not once did any trace of the "hoodlumism" complained of in the past few years make its appearance although one merry group formed into a snake dance and sang popular songs for a time. However, this was passed over good-naturedly by the carol singers.

Voices chorusing in joyous anthem resounded from Beacon Hill last night as a gay throng of 75,000, the greatest in recent years, gathered to herald again the Saviour's birth.

Fair young ladies, tilting their chins to the stars, poured forth their song. Young men and old, muffled in great coats, lent volume and made the night ring with the glad refrain. Wintry: arriving, at midnight they far exceeded those of recent years. Mt. Vernon street, Pinckney street, Chestnut street, West Cedar street and the other streets in the immediate locality were filled with the vast crowd which overflowed the sidewalks and preempted the traffic lanes.

To handle the huge crowd, 200 policemen took up posts on the hill, shutting off traffic from many of the main streets and allowing cars to pass on others when gaps showed conveniently as the crowds moved to and fro.

In each doorway of the quadrangle of Louisburg square, the caroling crowds assembled. Hundreds of different groups from various church and social organizations gathered to lift their voices in praise of the Holy Infant.

Sometimes the song they sang was the same, and it swelled towards the heavens in one great chorus. Then again, different groups at the corners of the square chose unlike hymns and the singing mass moved in opposite directions.

Swinging their arms against their chests to warm their frozen, hands, dancing on the cobblestones to restore life to their numbed feet, the carolers kept up their song.

Bell ringers moved through the district and the crowds broke before them, making their march as if one triumphant. Cornet players made the tempo and carried the strain for the caroling groups.

Nearly all of the homes on Beacon Hill were thrown open to the carolers, and in each there was a gay scene as groups gathered to sip hot coffee and nibble sweet cakes.

One of the largest groups to assemble in Beacon Hill was made up of the St. Mark's Church choir of Brookline, the Swedish Lutheran chorale, the Seminarian Singers of the B. U. School of Theology, the B. U. Glee club and the Amphion club of Melrose.

Other groups, numerically large, were the Old Cambridge Baptist Church carolers, led by the Rev. Newton C. Fetter, the Garrison Madrigalists, the Singers, the Boston Federation of the Young People's Religious Union, the Emmanuel Club, led by Ernest Hardy and containing 150 carolers, the Burlington Newboys' Foundation group, led by Paul Jones and carrying a harmonium accompaniment, the traditional group led by Dr. Richard, Cabot, outstanding surgeon, and the group made up of residents of Beacon Hill.
CAROLS IN CHURCHES

Depict Scene of Nativity in King’s Chapel and All Downtown Episcopal Churches—Sermons Tell of the First Christmas Day

Carols, depicting the scene of the nativity, were sung in King’s Chapel and at other downtown churches last night at special services arranged to usher in the first Christmas Day. Thousands jammed the churches and appropriate sermons were preached about the first Christmas Day.

At King’s Chapel the men’s choir rendered a select group of carols, and there was a brief message by the Rev. Henry Knox King, D. D. This service followed a Christmas tree party for the children early in the afternoon.

A solemn evensong was celebrated at the Church of the Advent, during which service the choir also chanted the Te Deum, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. B. E. Harrisson. Carols were sung at the Church of St. John the Evangelist at 8 o’clock, and a special service of carols was also held at King’s Chapel. Similar services were also held in many of the outlying Episcopal churches and services will also be held today.

Two of the outstanding services this morning will be held at the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, where the Rt. Rev. Harry Knox Willard, of Milton, will deliver the sermon. The other will be at Trinity Church, who spoke briefly, when a Christmas tree was a brilliantly illuminated and surrounded by the strains of familiar Christmas carols for the first time, as a group of men and women workers in the customs service, led by Joseph J. Curran as master of ceremonies, rendezved the offices on each floor. Later, from the balcony overlooking the main floor, a WPA chorus of 40 voices, directed by William Ellis Weston, and with Mrs. Elson H. Milton Post, Sons of American Legion, with cornet solos, continued the musical program.

Collector of Customs Joseph A. Maynard, who arranged and directed the celebration, said that it was fitting to celebrate the return of better times. Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, invited both the WPA chorus and to deliver an address on “The Spirit of Christmas,” said it was time for all Americans to face anew to better things, so that an episode such as the enforced departure of the Lindberghs on their native heaths, the various seamen’s organizations will have a dinner today, and entertainment at night, to bring some of the day’s happiness to the lives of the wanderers.

And so, around the circle, in every phase of marine activity, Christmas cheer will be dispensed and furnished, hand to the men who carry on day by day, afloat and ashore, the country’s vital commerce and fisheries.

A brisk northwest wind made Boston Common such an uncomfortable spot last night that less than 100 persons were present when the city’s official program was ushered in at the Parkman bandstand at 5:30 o’clock.

A Park Commissioner William P. Long, in the absence of Mayor Mansfield, delivered the message of the Boston Common Christmas tree was lighted. Seventy feet high, with more than 30 trees used to construct it, the official Christmas tree was a brilliantly-illuminated cone-like structure.

Directors of Public Celebrations Arthur D. O’Keefe introduced Joseph A. F. O’Neil, chairman of the committee, who spoke briefly, when a Christmas tree was lighted. Seventy feet high, with more than 30 trees used to construct it, the official Christmas tree was a brilliantly-illuminated cone-like structure.

Fountain Illuminated

From 6:30 to 8 o’clock last night the Frog Pond fountain was illuminated. The frigid weather, however, kept the spectators from gathering.

KILLER IS TRACED TO R. I. CITY

Guarnelli Asked a Friend for Money and Clothes

GAVE MURDER GUN TO EVERETT MAN

All Trace of Convict Repucci Lost Despite Army of Sleuths

BY LESTER ALLEN

Eluding the search of police of a half dozen cities of Metropolitan Boston, Edward Guarnelli, 26, and Antonio Repucci, 25, State prison convicts who killed their guard, Walter R. Doucette, in a taxicab and made their escape, have separated and escaped the condon, police believed last night, as they worked on the cold trail of Guarnelli, the actual slayer, in Rhode Island.

As hundreds of police officers in Chelsea, Revere, Everett, Boston, Somerville and Cambridge watched every known acquaintance of the two house breakers, two girls living in East Boston who had visited and written to the men, were under particular surveillance.

At the same time one of the strangest death toasts ever drunk at Christmas was disclosed by an Everett bartender who gave Guarnelli a stiff slug of whiskey only an hour after the fleeing convict had killed Doucette, and was astounded to hear the convicted burglar say, "Here's to the mug I just killed."

Silvio Pace, M. manager of the Lido Cafe at 165 Main street, Everett, told police an amazing story of Guarnelli's separation from Repucci, and of how he cached the death weapon, Guard Doucette's own gun.

While detectives of Boston and Everett combed the Metropolitan area for Repucci, the search for Guarnelli was centered at Cranston, R. I., where Antonio Morrocco of Everett, the man to whom Guarnelli appealed for funds and a change of clothes, was being detained by Cranston police for questioning at the request of Deputy Superintendent James R. Claffin of Boston.

Police also questioned Charles McEachern, a Boston fireman, attached to the Bowdoin Square station, at his home on Sydney street, Medford, concerning an automobile trip Mrs. Morrocco informed police her husband took with McEachern late Monday night. Fire Commissioner Edward J. McLaughlin announced last night that he would probe the matter.

Bartender's Story

Pace's story of Guarnelli's cold-blooded toast to his victim, whom he shot in a taxicab while Guard Doucette was taking the two convicts from Dedham Court to the State prison, is one of the strangest stories of chance favoring the escape of widely-sought g-

"He came into my place about 7 o'clock," said Pace. "I knew Guarnelli because he used to live around here. I was surprised to see him here. I knew he was doing a 10-year bit in State prison. He beckoned to me and I went over to the end of the bar. "'Listen,' he said to me. 'I just bumped off the screw and got away. I got to find Morrocco. Give me a slug of whiskey.' I was so surprised that I couldn't figure it out. I gave him the drink. He acted as if he had taken plenty to drink. His eyes were all bloodshot. He lifted up the glass and said, 'Well, here's to the mug I just killed.' I said it loud, but the other customers in the place didn't hear it. Then he said that if a cop came into the place he would bump him off, too. One more didn't make any difference, he said. "I told him, 'For God's sake don't be a fool. You got away. What more do you want?' He said he had to get his gun. I said that if a cop came into the place he would bump him off, too. One more didn't make any difference, he said. "I asked him why he wanted the gun. I said that it wouldn't get him anything, and I asked him why he Gave Gun to Bartender

Guarnelli left the cafe about 7:30 Monday night after having been in the Pace's care. Pace stated he took the murder weapon with him, but left it in Cafe's care. Pace stated he took the gun home with him Monday night and yesterday morning took it back to the cafe with him.

After he read the morning papers, he said, he realized that it was a murder, and he then gave the gun to Abraham Itzkowitz, an Everett WPA employee. He told Itzkowitz to get rid of the gun. Itzkowitz took the gun and hid it.

Inspection Edward J. Dunn of the Everett police learned the fact that Guarnelli had been seen drinking in the Everett cafe yesterday morning, and when he questioned Pace learned of the hiding of the gun. Pace and Itzkowitz were detained by police for several hours, but they were later released at North End station after they had provided police with a definite clue on which to work.

Called at Morocco's Home

Detectives Hazen Chalmers and Robert Bowes of the North End station, who secured warrants charging the two escaped convicts with murder, pursued the hunt with 40 police officers in Everett. It was learned at the home of Morocco that Tuesday afternoon, his daughter had answered the door when Guarnelli appeared seeking Morocco. They stated to the police that Guarnelli went away when he was told Morocco was not at home.

Police then learned that Morocco made a midnight trip to Cranston, R. I., in an automobile to visit a brother. It was stated to police that a family quarrel preceded his departure for Rhode Island. As a result of this information Charles McEachern, a Boston lawyer, was interrogated by police. He stated that he had been with Morocco, police said.

McEachern, who is attached to the Bowdoin square fire station as a member of the crew of Engine 8, has an address at 7 Phillips street, Charlestown, but his family lives in Malden. Deputy Superintendent Claffin sent Sergeant James V. Crowley and Sergeant Thomas Conaty of headquarters detectives bureau to Cranston to question Morocco after Cranston police had located the man.

No Trace of Repucci

Boston police, with police departments of other Metropolitan cities, had been unable up to an early hour this morning, to find a trace of the second escaped convict, although Justice Louis Di Sessa and Detectives Joseph Marceau of headquarters were sent to Gloucester to check on relatives of Repucci who lives in the Italian fishing colony.

It is believed that Repucci, within two hours after the guard had been killed on Commercial street, North End, was equipped by underworld acquaintances with money and a change of clothes, and was on his way out of Boston past the rapidly forming cordon of police.

Everyone who has visited the two or three prison guards, although State authorities for their future, took special precautions for Christmas have been taken down. Crepe is going up in its place.

The police search, spurred by a $1000 reward offered by Governor Curley, developed and eliminated clues to the whereabouts of the men so rapidly that all sorts of wild rumors were abated. A clue in Framingham, where a lunch-wagon man stated he saw the two men together, and a clue in Water-town, where two men tried to buy tickets on a bus for Saybrook, Conn., were developed and eliminated so fast that three separate police departments made investigations of the same clues.

Plan Changes in Moving Convicts

As Arthur T. Lyon, commissioner of corrections, probated the case he announced that thereafter the use of trains, taxis and other public conveyances would be rigidly supervised, and that an adequate number of guards would be sent along to supervise the convicts and prevent their escape or a fatal attack upon the guards. Lyon's escape was evidently carefully planned.

Frank B. Beardon of 30 Rosario street, Dorchester, driver of the cab, declared last night that the men began the flight with Doucette at State street, and that he asked Doucette if he wanted him to stop and set help, but that Doucette declared he had no idea what he was going to do, and that he would take care of them.

In the future, according to the instructions given to Lyon, one guard will be handcuffed to the prisoner, while the other will be free to use his hands. Commissioner Lyon expressed an opinion that it was an error on the part of Doucette, the main guard, to have handcuffed himself to the prisoners.

Homes Guarded

The home of assistant District Attorney M. Edward Viola at 44 High street, was broken into by Everett police last night because of a threat made by the two men when they were tried in Middlesex court. Several apartment house occupants appealed to the police for protection last night, and several apartment houses to frustrate any attempt that either man might make to get clothes and money in the event that one or both of them is still hiding in Everett.

But over at the Doucette home on Columbia road, the tragic "error" was plainly written in the Christmas tree forgotten on the back porch, the torn shades, the tear-stained faces of Doucette's six children, three of whom are in bed with grippe, and the agony written on the features of Mrs. Mary Doucette, the 40-year-old widow of the prison guard.

As yet no provision has been made by State authorities for their future.

The Brockton Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen opened offices here in an attempt to form a unit of its union and the Boot & Shoe Industry laid further claims of control over this shoe centre with the announcement that five of the largest wood heel plants had signed with the new organization as Haverhill entered the fourth week of an inter-union fight for control.

Registrars and both of whom had visited the prison, were being shadowed in East Boston, and five men were constantly under the eyes of police clothes detail in Everett.

Reward Spur Search

Police surrounded the home of Mrs. Arunta Repucci at 53 Allen street, West End, last night, in search of one of the escaped slayers, but could find no trace of the men.

LEGION GLEE CLUB SERENADES GOVERNOR

Governor Curley, his family and a number of friends who were visiting the Jamaica-way mansion of the chief executive, were entertained by the American Legion Glee Club, under the direction of Madame Electria Rosahaka last night. The songsters stood on the lawn outside the Curley home and rendered Christmas carols, their sweet voices doing justice to the beautiful Yuletide hymns.

When they finished serenading members of the household, Governor Curley invited them inside for refreshments, and then presented each member of the group with a silver dollar.
LIBERTY LEAGUE'S STRATEGY

Use of Ex-Gov. Smith Not Apt to Affect Roosevelt

BY ROBERT L. NORTON

Of course, the American Liberty League plays its biggest card when former Governor Smith is put out in front. The men financially behind the league, like DuPont and Raskob, for instance, exert a limited influence upon public opinion. They are more potent in big business or sitting around the table of a board of directors.

CAN ONLY AID G. O. P.

Neither is the opinion of their large group of voluntary lawyers as to the constitutionality of the New Deal very impressive. Practically all of these lawyers have been retained by the larger corporations of the country as well as the utilities. It is not to be assumed that their heavy decisions exert any influence upon the Supreme Court. In fact they are not intended for this purpose. They are anti-Roosevelt...that's all.

As a practical matter the American Liberty League can only function in the 1936 campaign as an auxiliary to the Republican campaign. It will be of service to the Republican candidate for President in the North and East. This organization doesn't make the slightest dent in the South or the agricultural States.

Have Hard Row to Hoe

There isn't the remotest possibility of defeating Mr. Roosevelt for the Democratic nomination for President. Some of the more experienced politicians in the Liberty League, that is those who are on the payroll, rather than the contributing end, have been visualizing the possibility of setting up a formidable group of non-pledged delegates. They have even talked of a bolt on the platform, reminiscent of the Cleveland days on the free silver issue.

But to elect any such delegation in any State would mean the defeat of Mr. Roosevelt within the Democratic party. In other words no delegation could be organized which might claim to favor Mr. Roosevelt for the renomination and at the same time oppose his policies.

For instance, ex-Governor Ely could not head a non-pledged delegation in Massachusetts except as an admitted bitter opponent of the President. It is questionable whether he could win, even although admittedly the tide has been running strongly against the President in this section. The chances are that Governor Curley would dictate the delegation. Presumably he might include Senator Walsh, who is known as a lukewarm supporter of the President, but he might not decide to do this.

There have been frequent conferences between former Governors Smith and Ely as to the possibility of making a fight against a pledged Roosevelt delegation in Massachusetts. But nothing has been settled up to date.

Both will be headliners at the dinner of the Liberty League which is scheduled in Washington the night of Jan. 25. It should be a highly interesting affair as indicating the extent of the rebellion in the Democratic party against the New Deal policies. It will be the "Old Guard" in action.

But its affect on the Democratic convention is likely to be nil.

PARDONED LIFERS ARE GRATEFUL

Express Their Thanks for Freedom to Governor

Two of the lifers pardoned by the Governor and Council on Wednesday left to take up their homes outside of Massachusetts immediately after they had paid their respects to Governor Curley at the State House yesterday afternoon.

The third pardoned lifer, Wojciech Biruz of Salem, did not come to the State House yesterday, because, being an alien, he was pardoned on condition that he is to be deported to his native Poland.

GOES TO BURLINGTON

Morris Levine of Holyoke went to Burlington, Vt., to spend the rest of his life with his sister. He is 67 years of age and was pardoned because of a weakened physical condition. He expressed confidence, however, that he is still able to do a good job of painting and he hopes to find plenty of work in Burlington, where he lived for 15 years.

Samuel Powers, committed in 1914, said he would start at once for New York, where his sister, who conducts a beauty shop in Harlem, has offered to set him up in business.

The other four prisoners released yesterday were William Hooper of Lynn, who was serving a six to seven years' sentence for manslaughter; Joseph Kinkowitch of Worcester, serving 15 to 16 years for stealing, and William G. Henry of Dorchester, three to five years for larceny.

In a brief talk to the six men who came to the State House to thank him, the Governor said:

"Obey the laws and you will be safe. If you violate the laws you must expect to suffer the penalties. There is one thing I want you to remember that is that the old law of compensation never sleeps—it always works. If you do good deeds, you will be rewarded. If you do evil deeds, you will never escape punishment."
But there were neither ghosts nor eerie sounds that night, nor any sign of the dead comrades of John Jones. Not a syllable about "pieces of eight" or "dead men's chests" or "bottles of rum." The Snows were reassured to be sure—but that man except for this, is yet to be printed.

SPIRIT OF THE DAY: The traffic cop himself at Tremont street and Park couldn't get over it.

A sedan had come out of Hamilton place and stalled right in the middle of everything. It was after 6 p.m. and motorists were anxious to get home. There was no honking of horns. No yells. No indignation and certainly none of the customary profanity and offers to knock blocks off. Instead pedestrians, other motorists, got out to push, straighten the stalled car out, help him and his family the way and that. It's the sort of thing which would never happen at this spot any other time of the year.

But you see it was Christmas eve! And lest we are accused of getting this in pure naught, we like to make a season's tale, the number of the stalled car was Massachusetts Registration, 2412.

Said one of the towns' ardent and in this case learned controversialists, "his abusive persecutor the Registrar so wrong had his car falsely attached his sweater to the top of a lamppost. The Registrar do but revoke his license? Abusive letters—ass.

Now if he had never written those abusive letters—ass.

PROBING PROXY WEDDING CASE

Governor Studying Plea for Pardon

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 26.—John H. Backus, assistant secretary to Governor Curley and his adviser to penal matters, announced today that an investigation will be conducted into the case of Siebert H. Mansfield, Jr., of Providence, serving a year's sentence here for his proxy marriage to Vesta Jean Isherwood of Nantucket.

Backus declared the probe was under way "to lift the circular circumstances associated to the case" and the contrary opinions expressed in reference to the matter.

Mansfield pleaded guilty in the Superior Court here in November to charges of perjury and conspiracy to violate the marriage laws. Judge Walter L. Collins sentenced the youth.

Mansfield later petitioned Governor Curley for a pardon.

In June, Mansfield, accompanied by Gloria Banco, of Providence, was married in Seekonk, the bride using Miss Isherwood's name. Mansfield, working as a grocery clerk at Nantucket in the summer of 1934, met Miss Isherwood on a island nearby, knew the unholy legendary terror of that place, and the couple were then gathering material for this very book.

Robinson Crusoe Style, Snow attached his sweater to the top of a lamppost in Providence. The Registrar then, wrote the Governor's secretary, "to remind this generation of the strange horrors of a piratical past.

XMAS PARDONS HANDED TO 7

Smiling gently, a 67-year-old wife killer thanked the Governor.

He was a mild-looking old man, with big steel-rimmed spectacles. A beard would have made him look like Santa Claus.

Five older men flanked him—"all made happy by Christmas pardons."

The wife killer, Morris Levine, of Hopedale, and a Negro, Samuel Powers, of Westfield, who also murdered his wife, were the happiest, because they were both serving life sentences. Levine had served seven years of his, and Powers three times that, three years that. The other four were younger men, convicted of less serious crimes.

GOVERNOR'S ADVICE

They stood in Governor Curley's office yesterday, and heard him say:

"It's Christmas time—the season of peace on earth and good will to men. The state of Massachusetts is evoking that spirit in giving these pardons. It is up to you how you use them. Remember—It's your duty to yourselves to use them well."

Levine's daughter, Mrs. Mary Rome, of Hartford, wept as she thanked the governor. So did the mother of Joseph Zinkowitcz, a young man who had been sentenced to 15 to 18 years in prison in 1928 for stealing $30.

SERVED 21 YEARS

Powers, the man with 21 years of prison behind him, said:

"Thank you, Mr. Governor, thank you. I'm going to New York and I won't ever bother you folks in Massachusetts any more."

A third life, Woiciech Bruszczyk of Salem, was not at the ceremony. Federal men hold him for deportation.

Others who will eat Christmas dinner with relatives instead of at Charlestown or Norfolk prisons are William Hooper of Lynn, sentenced in 1933 to 6 to 7 years for manslaughter, and Thomas J. Sanchinetti of Cambridge, serving 12 to 20 years for manslaughter, and William G. Henry of Dorchester, serving 3 to 5 years for the larceny of $1700 from the Minot Co-operative bank.
CHRISTMAS ON AIR FROM HOLY LAND

Lionel Barrymore in Dickens Role

By STEVE FITZGIBBON
The "Story of Christmas" will be broadcast over NBC-WBZ-WEI today at 12:30 . . . The program will open in Bethlehem, with music by the Franciscan Choir, singing in the Church of the Nativity, located on the edge of the manger . . . It will then switch to Cairo, Egypt, beneath the Virgin's Tree at Mataria, where the Holy Family rested on the flight from the wrath of King Herod . . . Portions of a Pastoral will then be heard sung by a choir in Rome . . . This composition was recently unearthed from some of the old archives and has never been heard publicly in this country . . . From San Francisco will come the ringing of bells and music by a boy's choir in the Mission Dolores, founded in 1776 . . . The original building still stands and this portion of the "Story of Christmas" will originate from there .

GREETINGS OF EMPIRE
The voice of England's King George, greeting his subjects in various parts of the world, will be heard on NBC-WBZ and CBS-WAAB at 9:30 a.m . . . Opening in London with carollers, the program will end with greetings from ten communities in the British Isles and one each from Canada, India, South Africa and New Zealand . . .

Gov. Curley faces WNAC microphones at 6:30 p.m. to give you his views on "Social Security" . . .

John Charles Thomas will have 300 orphans from various Manhattan institutions as guests during his broadcast over NBC-WBZ at 5 o'clock . . . Which reminds us that Jack Fisher and his boys pass up a portion of their free time today to entertain needy youngsters assembled in the Steuben restaurant as the guests of Max and Joe Schneider .

TWO SCROOGES
No Yuletide would be complete without Dickens' "A Christmas Carol" . . . Like last year you will hear it via CBS-WAAB at 5 o'clock with Lionel Barrymore as Scrooge . . . Barrymore will have the splendid assistance of Buster Phelps, of the talkies, who will portray Tiny Tim . . .

George Burns and Gracie Allen have decided to burlesque this Dickens masterpiece during their weekly aircast over WNAC at 8:30 p.m . . . Gracie announces that she has been studying a portrait of Barrymore in his Scrooge makeup for some weeks now and after she hears him do it on the above program she will pull out her little blue hat and go right to town . . .

Only it will be entitled "Scram, Scrooge," when you hear it in the Burns and Allen manner . . . To give you a faint idea of what may happen, Gracie has assigned the role of Tiny Tim to Jacques Renard . . . But the sponsors of Gracie's program advise us not to take too much stock in what she says at the last minute, Gracie might change her mind and just say "Merry Christmas" . . . However, comedy such as this should be a welcome relief after a somewhat heavy day . . .

Ethel Grier has a dicker on with Steuben's Vienna room . . . We caught the Frint Sisters, who are in town for the holidays . . . We extend our greetings to you and yours for a most happy Christmas, and thank you for your encouragement and help the past year.

Coughlin Sends Curley Greeting

The Rev. Charles A. Coughlin sent the season's greetings to Gov. Curley in a letter received yesterday at the State House.

"My dear Governor Jim," the radio priest wrote, "may I intrude upon you for a moment to wish you and your loved ones a holy and happy Christmas. May the Child Jesus bless you and love you now and forever."

FEAR AID TO PAIR HUNTED

Three young women, from Malden, Everett and East Boston, constant visitors at state prison, were under close, secret surveillance yesterday, as search continued for their boyfriends, desperate long-term convicts who escaped from a prison guard Monday night, killing him in the melee.

Police believe that the girls' regard for the two escaped desperadoes, Anthony Repucci, 25, and Edward Guarnelli, 25, is such that the pair may turn to the girls for money, a hide-out or other assistance.

More than a score of other persons, including members of the two men's families, are being watched, and police cars are parked outside their former homes in Everett. One house in Everett was suddenly surrounded and searched yesterday afternoon, but without result.

The lives of two men were also guarded, as police placed a watch about the homes of Judge Abraham Finanski of Brookline, who had sentenced the fugitives, and of Asst. Dist. Atty. M. Edward Viola of Everett, who prosecuted them.

To Viola, one of the men, Repucci, had hissed, "We'll take care of you when we get out."

COMB EVERETT

Two Everett men were being questioned following recovery in Everett of the pistol with which Guard Walter R. Doucette was shot to death as he was conveying the two men back to State Prison from Dedham Court.

Finding of the gun, which was due to the alertness of Lieut. Inspector Edward J. Dunn, turned the search definitely into Everett, it being established that one or both of the escaped men went there soon after their escape. It was feared by police, however, that they Edward Guarnelli Antonio Repucci have been spirited out of that city.

Guarnelli, the pistol in his hand walked into a cafe on Main st. Everett, about 7:30 p.m. Monday night. The escape occurred at about 6 o'clock.

At gunpoint, the desperate forced Silvio E. Pace, 38, manager of the place, who told the story to police, to make a telephone call.

There was no answer at the number called.

Guarnelli, well-known to Pace through his former residence in Everett, told the latter that he was prepared "to shoot it out with any cop who got in his way." He expressed a hatred of all police.

"This gun has shot a prison guard," he declared, waving the pistol which was taken from the slain Doucette, "and it will shoot a cop, too."

Pace said he tried to pacify the escaped convict, to convince him that it would do him no good to shoot a policeman, and reminded him that it was the Christmas season, and that most policeman have children.

He said Guarnelli suddenly turned to him, handed over the gun, saying:

"Well, you take it, and keep it for me, hide it somewhere."

Pace said he kept the gun in the cafe all night. Yesterday morning, when one Abe Itzkowitz, 31, a WPA worker came in to the place, Pace told him the story and asked him to hide the gun.

Abe took it to a vacant shed in Main st., and placed it beneath some burlap bags. As he left the place, he met Inspector Dunn. Dunn halted him and questioned him. Abe told him what he knew and showed Dunn where the gun was hidden.

IN CUSTODY

Dunn took Pace and Itzkowitz to Everett headquarters and police were called. The pair were taken into custody by Capt. John J. Mallon and lodged at Station 1, where they were booked on suspicion.

There they were being questioned late yesterday by Lieut. John McCarthy and high police officials, including Deputy Supt. James R. Claflin, who has been placed in charge of the investigation.

Spurred on by a reward of $1000 offered by Governor Curley, under authority of the statutes, police directed their search in many directions, inspectors being dispatched to Cranston and Providence, R. I., and to Saybrook, Ct., to follow clues, while others worked in Everett, Malden, East Boston and Boston.

The lead to Cranston was considered good, for a close friend of the pair is known to have left suddenly for that place Monday night. He borrowed money from friends, and told them he was "going to Cranston to visit relatives."

There was a well defined rumor in Everett that the pair had been rushed to Rhode Island soon after the shooting.

MANY CLUES

Another report, which came from Watertown police, placed the pair in a Watertown drugstore at midnight, Monday, attempting to purchase bus tickets to Saybrook, Ct. They ran out when their actions aroused suspicion. A Framingham man also reported seeing a pair answering their description in a lunchroom in that town early yesterday.

Police were armed that the escaped men are desperate and probably are armed again. Orders to shoot to kill were issued and if he pair are cornered a gun battle is sure to ensue, police said.

The escape of Repucci and Guarnelli, and the slaying of Doucette, resulted in orders from Commissioner of Corrections Arthur T. Lyman yesterday that hereafter two guards will accompany criminals in transit from prison to court.

Out at the Doucette home, last night, in Columbia rd., the space between the windows of the living room where a Christmas tree for six children should be, was occupied by the slain guard's casket.

The pile of Christmas gifts on the piano had been replaced by candles and spiritual bouquets, and sadness took the place of the gaily expectant Christmas spirit which had prevailed a few hours before.

It was not much like Christmas at the Doucettes.

CAROLLERS
XMAS

Boston ushered in Christmas with the traditional carol singing on Beacon Hill, midnight religious services, a display of the generosity for which the city is noted toward the poor and unfortunate, and noisy revelry.

Thousands of merrymakers followed the carol singers in their rounds through the steep, narrow and twisting streets of the hill, aglow with candles, symbolic of the spiritual flame that is kept alive in human hearts by this ancient custom.

A band of bell ringers added their tinkling music to the fresh, eager voices of young women and the deeper notes of the men, while a taboo was laid against motor traffic during this picturesque observance of Yuletide, in order that the streets might be used to full advantage by the throng.

Lanterns and torchlights lighted the way of singers and merrymakers and the hill kept "house."

Organs boomed from churches from early evening until midnight when masses were sung as the great feast was drawing to a close in most of the Catholic churches throughout the archdiocese.

In the Protestant churches there were candle light services, festival music and communion services in many of the Episcopal churches. Thousands in the Catholic churches also knelt at the communion rail to receive the sacrament.

Boston opened wide its generous heart to the poor and friendless and in giving full play to the spiritual side of the great feast did not forget the material side.

This year the demand upon charity was greater than ever before, even while the depression is slowly passing into history, and the response was never more generous.

Social welfare agencies made glad the hearts of children with toys and gifts of warm clothing, while thousands knew the warmth and sincerity behind the slogan "They shall not hunger."

GIVE 2000 DINNERS

Mayor Mansfield as the city's leader gave out 2000 dinners in behalf of the Salvation Army at its headquarters in the South End.

Gov. Curley, leader in the state, attended a party for old persons at the Hanover st. home of the Volunteers of America and with the air of Santa Claus distributed gifts to the poor.

Instrumental also in raising funds to supply 2500 needy families with Christmas dinners, the Governor felt that he had carried the spirit of the great feast into homes that are little more than hovels, but last night were bright with a glow that was not alone of earth.

Various religious and charitable organizations also lived up to the objects for which they were founded by providing for several hundred men and women who might otherwise have gone hungry.

20,000 MADE HAPPY

Tickets were given for Christmas dinners at the Waldorf restaurants and it was announced that in addition this chain will feed 20,000 persons free as their contribution to the day.

Today in orphan asylums, hospitals and correctional institutions the hungry will be fed with turkey dinners, a feast such as the fortunate of greater means might envy, if they did not emulate it.

For the private observance in hotels, clubs and—what is nearer to the heart of the feast—in homes, the weather man promised today clear, sparkling weather with no hint of storm, a green Christmas and by all the signs a gay one.

Boston's official observance began yesterday afternoon with the lighting of the giant Christmas tree on Boston Common by Mayor Mansfield to the astonished and delighted "Oh's" and "Ah's" of childhood.

HEAR ROOSEVELT

Men and women who gathered to witness the happiness of the boys and girls likewise heard the voice of the nation's leader as President Roosevelt's message was broadcast to the nation.

There followed the singing of carols at Parkman bandstand, and when the gathering darkness made it feasible, the illumination of the frog pond. Still later the feast was dramatized with tableaux, music, lighting and scenic effects telling the simple, but moving story of the Nativity.

At midnight as all lights were extinguished there was a fanfare of trumpets to salute the new day, then lights were flashed on amid shouts and greetings of "Merry Christmas to All."
CHARITIES GREATEST IN HISTORY

In a last-minute prediction last night, the weather man promised another green Christmas for today, similar to that of last year. Fair and continued cold was the forecast, with no snow in sight.

Last minute shopping done, last forgotten ones remembered, Boston greeted another Christmas with songs and services last night.

Never in years has the demand on charity been greater, and never has the generous response of the people been exceeded.

Christmas dinners were distributed to thousands of the city's needy yesterday. Social welfare agencies gave toys and clothing to hundreds of children.

Special services were held in Protestant and Catholic churches, drawing thousands of the faithful.

An official city observance of Christmas began at noon yesterday with the singing of Christmas carols at City Hall.

The program was renewed at the Parkman Bandstand at 5:30 where a giant Christmas tree was lighted by Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield.

Thousands gathered for the exercises on Boston Common and heard the President's Christmas message broadcast to the nation.

Through the evening until midnight, concerts, choruses and pageants held the attention of the people.

Mayor Mansfield gave out the first of more than 2,000 Christmas dinners at the Salvation Army Headquarters in the South End yesterday.

Several hundred men and women who might otherwise go hungry tomorrow were given tickets through various religious and charitable organizations which are good for Christmas dinners at Waldorf restaurants. These restaurants will feed 20,000 persons free today as their contribution to the Christmas spirit.

GOV. CURLEY AIDS

Gov. James M. Curley, who was instrumental in raising funds to supply 2,500 families with Christmas dinners, yesterday attended a party for old persons at the Volunteers of America home on Hanover street and helped pass out gifts to the people.

Beacon hill, agleam with candles and blazing with light, resembled old England, with carolers marching and singing through the streets.

Part of this program was relayed to all parts of the world by an International radio hookup.

Today Christmas will be observed particularly in the churches. At most Catholic churches, Christmas observance began with the celebration of midnight mass. Other masses will be held through the morning.

Protestant churches generally will observe the day with special sermons, music and pageants.

Turkey dinners will be served today to all inmates of city institutions, including Charles st. jail and Deer Island.

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 24—The possibility of a pardon for Herbert H. Mansfield, Jr., Providence restaurant worker who pleaded guilty last months to perjury in connection with a "proxy" marriage, was raised today when an investigation was ordered by the Governor's office, according to the Standard-Times. The newspaper quoted John H. Backus, secretary to Gov. Curley, as saying an inquiry has been started "due to the unusual circumstances attached to the case."

G.O.P. Senators to 'Dine and Discuss'
Session May Prove Caucus

(Special to the Daily News)
STATE HOUSE, Boston, Dec. 26 — Republican members of the Massachusetts Senate will 'dine and discuss' Friday evening. Their main topic of discussion will be party unity and harmony as they hold their annual party pre-session dinner at the Conley Plaza.
Chief among items to be ironed out will be the party regularity of President James O. Moran.
The party dinner may resolve itself into more than just a friendly get together inasmuch as a caucus may be its ultimate result.

Draft Program

Drafting of a program for opposition or support to special bits of legislation may be brought along and without a doubt pressure will be brought to bear on the Senate president to force a promise he will adhere strictly to the party policies in consideration for a return to the rules committee of the three indignant Republicans who resigned last year.
Whether or not ouster proceedings will be inaugurated against Senator William F. Madden, convicted of work slip fraud, could not be definitely ascertained today.
Some Senators feel Madden should tender his resignation. Others are of the opinion he should be forced from the Senate.
Retention of the Senate seats held by three Democratic elective officers recently appointed by Governor Ely and two by Governor Curley may be under fire.
Senators William S. Conroy of Fall River, Charles T. Cavanagh of Cambridge and Joseph C. White of Boston all hold positions in the state service, as well as their Senate posts.
Republicans may take some action to purge their body of this dual service with dual pay from the state treasury.

The possibility that Congressman-Mayor Richard M. Russell may make an important political announcement at the banquet to be given in his honor at the Hotel Continental Saturday night has aroused intense interest in the affair. There is already a sell-out on tickets.
Just what the announcement may be is still a secret, but the fact that Gov. Curley has announced his candidacy for U. S. senator has started a rumor that the Congressman-Mayor may throw his hat in the ring for governor at the Democratic convention next spring. Since a free-for-all is likely, if the governor sticks to his present plan, a Cambridge entry—or even two—will lend zest to what promises to be one of the most important state campaigns in a decade.
While this feature of the affair is problematical, there is a feature which is sure and that is the presentation to the guest of honor of an oil portrait of himself done by Vollian Burr Rann, an artist of national standing. Mr. Rann is well-known in the artists' colonies of Provincetown and New York and has held showings of his work in the National Academy of Art and the Pennsylvania Academy of Art. Mr. Rann has made his home in Provincetown for the past 15 years.
A distinguished list of guests is expected, among whom will be many of the Congressman's colleagues at Washington, Postmaster Peter Tague of Boston, State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, Mayor-elect John D. Lynch. The committee hopes to have the presidents of Harvard, Technology and Boston university present and also all the living ex-mayors of Cambridge. It is also expected that a distinguished speaker from Washington will attend, but the committee is withholding his name until definite assurance of his presence had been received.
With a capacity audience assured, the affair is expected to be the banner event of the winter political season.
HUGE ROAD-BUILDING PROJECT AT ENTRANCE TO TOWN

Steel, Concrete And Granite Span Will Be 111 Feet Long And 14 Feet High Of Most Modern Type With Number Of Construction Wrinkles

While the pass and its approaches will be the central figure of the project, the undertaking involves considerable incidental work. A major part of this will be relocation and extension of the Muddy River culverts which carry the stream under Washington Street and Huntington Avenue, riprapping a section of the bottom of the river for locks, construction of connecting roads and traffic circles and extensive landscaping. At the present time contractors are working as many hours a day as possible fixing the brook and already stream shovels have dug out a sizable area and many trees have been cut down. The filling, which will raise the approaches to the bridge level, will be done this winter and the road work and construction of the span will be done the coming summer. It will be a long time before the parkways and environs assume their customary well-kept appearance, although the contract calls for completion of the project on September 26 of next year. The undertaking will entail an expenditure of approximately $500,000.

The rent granting of a court injunction restraining certain construction work during the hours of the night served to direct attention to a gigantic road-building project now underway at the village entrance to Brookline in connection with completion of the local link of the Boston-Worcester turnpike. This is the construction of a pass to carry Jamaicaway and Riverway over Huntington Avenue and Washington Street which is expected to be adequate for traffic needs for the next fifty years.

The problem confronting traffic engineers of the State Department of Public Works was this: four years ago 52,000 automobiles traversed the intersection every twenty-four hours; then the number increased, and when the turnpike was put into use and a count made this year showed that 70,000 vehicles passed through the point every twenty-four hours some means had to be found to overcome the resultant congestion and the awkward turns necessitated. The solution found was an overpass such as is now being constructed with a sufficient number of approaches to enable motorists to go their desired ways by a succession of right-hand turns.

The span itself will be 111 feet long, but from the beginning of the approach on one side to the end of the approach on the other will be about 1,500 feet—roughly, a quarter of a mile. On the bridge will be two 30-foot roadways, with a four-foot reservation in the middle, an arrangement that will allow three lanes of traffic in each direction. The roadways will be of solid concrete slabs, covered with coarse bituminous that will match the black surface of the rest of the parkway, and in addition will be, it is said, less slippery in wet weather than flat concrete. Under the pass will be, eventually, two 34-foot roadways with a 25-foot reservation in the middle, an arrangement that will allow three lanes of traffic in each direction. The roadways will be of solid concrete slabs, covered with coarse bituminous that will match the black surface of the rest of the parkway, and in addition will be, it is said, less slippery in wet weather than flat concrete. Under the pass will be, eventually, two 34-foot roadways with a 25-foot reservation in the middle and two 8/2-foot sidewalks. For the present, however, Huntington Avenue will remain open, with car tracks down the middle as now. Looking at the bridge from any angle no observer will be able to see any of the steel work. Even the “ceiling” will be covered with concrete, rising fourteen feet above Huntington Avenue at the curbs and about eighteen feet in the middle.

Into the bridge will go 350 tons of structural steel, 170 tons of reinforcing steel, 3,000 yards of concrete and 17,000 square feet of granite facing. As little “false work”—wooden scaffolding—as possible will be used during construction of the pass. Much of the steel work is of a pre-fabricated type which can be lifted into place at night and riveted in the day time.
A modern feature will be nine three-inch wire cables, run under Huntington Avenue between the two big concrete blocks which will serve as abutments for the bridge. Nine steel ribs will hold the upper part of the bridge, but the weight on top will tend to "spread" the supports of the bridge as either end, on the ground level. The cables, which will be tightened up, will prevent this spreading. In addition, the sub-surface of Huntington Avenue will be tied in as a further safeguard against the base of the pass slipping. Ordinarily all these precautions would not be necessary, but this particular region was a swamp not so many decades ago and the ground isn't as solid as it is in some places. There will never be, however, any question of the strength of this span. It is designed so that each traffic lane—which won't be called upon to carry anything heavier than the ten-passenger sedans—can carry a procession of twenty ton trucks.

Completion Of Pike
Link Strikes Snag

SERIOUS SITUATION RESULTS.
GENERAL COMPLAINT VOICED

Public-Spirited Democrat Wanted To Get Action By State Administration

Wanted—a public spirited local Democrat who has sufficient influence with the present State administration to convince the latter that Brookline merchants and residents of the town are being seriously inconvenienced and are otherwise suffering from delay in completing the local link of the Boston-Worcester turnpike. If such a man, or woman, will take upon himself, or herself, this public endeavor, he, or she, will win the hearty thanks and everlasting gratitude of all living and passing business here.

All of which is by way of stating that the local work remaining to be done on this super highway project has apparently struck a snag and present indications are that it will be some time before the difficulty is overcome unless a miracle comes to pass. As matters now stand, the plan for the last local link of the turnpike has been approved by the State Department of Public Works but the latter has not yet officially agreed to take over construction of the stretch from Village Square to the town line as a State highway, maintaining that there are no funds available for either construction costs or incidental land damages. Town officials protest that legislation authorizing this was passed it would make available money for land damages incident to the project and also that other funds would be found for the actual construction of the link, but local officials have now been given to understand that all the bond money has either been allocated or earmarked and that there is no other money available. The only plausible explanation is that Brookline has been passed by, and the reason for this can readily be understood. Hence, the necessity for enlisting the services of a public-spirited local Democrat to endeavor to get Brookline the attention to which she is entitled.

Meanwhile, merchants of the Village section and others having occasion to traverse that part of the town are complaining in no uncertain terms over failure to start work on the link and virtually demanding action to relieve the situation resulting. The former maintain that the traffic congestion and general confusion in Village Square and immediate vicinity are handicapping them in the conduct of their business and the latter declare that existing conditions cause them much inconvenience and delay, while the situation has created a serious hazard. Despite the valiant efforts of the regular traffic officer in the Square and patrolmen assigned to duty in the vicinity for the time being, the morning and afternoon rush hours find traffic backed up to Harvard Square and Brookline Avenue while there is more or less congestion in the vicinity at all times, and conditions are becoming worse every day. Already the situation has become such that autists find getting through the Square a herculean feat and pedestrians "haven't a chance," with the result that both are avoiding the district as much as possible and merchants of the section are being penalized.

IT IS SAID

That in these days dedicated to good will to men we would rather be in the shoes of Dr Payson Smith than in those of James Michael Curley.

That quite a lot of people are taking pot shots at the political Santa Claus.

That even Father Coughlin cannot see how the Townsend plan can be carried out.

That the Boston Post-Santa went over the top as usual this year and deserved to win his fight.

That reopening of the Chelsea bridge will save a lot of wear and tear on Everett streets, with hundreds of heavy trucks now taking their usual routes.

That the letter carriers are glad that it is all over.

That there must be enough Christmas trees left over to start a small forest.

That the Gas & Electric Co employees gave a Christmas party to over 500 poor children at the Maiden Armory Saturday afternoon, each receiving gifts useful and appropriate to the season. Gen Manager "Josh" Day was a typical Santa Claus.

That the two Everett convicts who murdered a prison guard in cold blood should be thrown to the Ethiopians.

That all Christmas records at the local post office were broken this week.

That we would be better off if we kept the Lindbergs and deported all undesirable aliens and there are a lot of them.

That the WPA checks came through Monday and all the liquor places did a fine business. Sad but true.

That a good many Everett aspirants for city appointments will not hang up their stockings until the first Monday in January.

That Gov Curley pardoned five killers on Tuesday. Fine work and a wonderful Christmas present to the law abiding public.

That the employees of the New England Tank & Tower Co were made happy Christmas by a ten per cent increase in wages.

That WPA checks arrived in Everett on Tuesday and they kept the banks busy long after hours cashing them.
THE REMOVAL OF DR. SMITH

We have already recorded our opinion of the plot, for such it was, to remove Payson Smith from the office of State Commissioner of Education. Now that the removal has been consummated, we repeat that it is the worst blug ever dealt to the cause of public education in Massachusetts. It is not only that the schools are deprived of the direction of a supremely competent commissioner, one of the half dozen leading educators in the country. It is not only that he is superseded by a young man whose qualifications are uncertain and whose training for the post is inadequate. It is chiefly because a position that ought to be and always has been non-political is dragged down into the muck and mire of politics and the interests of the school children made subordinate to the machinations of a political group. If there is any reason for Dr. Smith’s removal other than that he was not afraid to condemn the political philosophy that lies behind the teachers’ oath bill, we have not heard it. He was sacrificed it appears because he still believes in freedom and distrusts Fascism under any and all disguises. The Governor shouldered the responsibility of removing him onto his subservient council. But the farcical performance will deceive no one. His “reappointment” of Dr. Smith and its immediate rejection by the Council is eyewash and nothing else. The fact that the Governor resorted to it, in such conspicuous contrast to his usual political boldness shows how bad he knew the whole affair to be. —Malden Evening News.

without an accumulation of misunderstandings, disappointments, personal animosities, and political hostility. I want to state, in no uncertain terms, that any opposition from teachers comes from a small minority and does not reflect the general attitude of Massachusetts teachers, regardless of attempts to create a contrary impression.

“I hope that every educator and citizen of Massachusetts who stands for the principle of keeping politics and education separated, and who believes that able, professional educational leadership should be supported, will immediately ask Governor Curley to reappoint Payson Smith as Commissioner of Education.”

Despite the statement of the President of the Massachusetts Teachers Federation the directors of that organization voted this week 12 to 8 in endorsing the man who was appointed to succeed Dr. Smith. Despite the fact that the Federation of Teachers was one of the most active foes of the teachers’ oath bill when it was before the Legislature last session this body voted to endorse the man who stood 100% for the oath.

While we feel that the action of the Governor’s Council was entirely contrary to the wishes of the majority of citizens, we also feel that there must have been some monkey business within the ranks of the Federation of Teachers to produce the paradox. —Wellesley Townsman.

FIRST SNOWFALL

Falmouth had its first appreciable snowfall of the winter Sunday night. It was not enough for coasting, but neither was it enough to spoil the skating, so youngsters were not unhappy. Skating began Sunday after two cold nights, and by Monday most of the smaller ponds in the town were safe. Saturday night was the coldest of the season to date, with the thermometer dropping to five above zero in Hatchville.
Says New Deal Was Misnamed

Curley Secretary Traces Roosevelt Program Back to "The Nazarene On Shores of Galilee"

The New Deal was misnamed, John H. Backus Jr., a secretary to Governor Curley, told the James M. Curley Club of Falmouth at its meeting in Junior High auditorium Thursday night. Mr. Backus asserted that the creed of the New Deal is "as old as the philosophy of the Nazarene upon the shores of Galilee".

Mr. Backus was the principal speaker. Thomas Ferreira, the club president, kept a few less than 60 people waiting until 8:30 P.M. before he began his meeting. Then he confessed his belief that something had detained the Curley secretary. But about 9 P.M. Mr. Backus came into the hall. The other speakers were Henry L. Murphy, postmaster of Hyannis, and John D. W. Bodfish.

Mr. Murphy said he had never before been an opening speaker, hoped he never would be again, and didn't like to be this time. "But I suppose I must," he said. "We can't go back on Roosevelt now any more than we could have gone back on Lincoln in the midst of the Civil War," Mr. Murphy said. "From whom are you most likely to get relief, the men who are in charge now or the men who were in charge when we sank to the lowest depths?"

Mr. Bodfish expressed the belief that conditions had not improved as fast as he could wish. His talk was a plea that the Roosevelt Democracy should not be blamed for its short-comings but rather supported for the great deal it has accomplished.

Mr. Bodfish delved into history and compared Hoover with Buchanan as a "do nothing president".

Nate Ellis led applause when Mr. Backus described the social program and old age assistance ideas of Governor Curley. Mr. Backus said Roosevelt and Curley will never deviate from their fight for the common people.

After the meeting Mr. Backus warmly greeted Edwin J. Donnelly, chairman of the Falmouth Democratic committee.

Teachers Push Their Protest

Falmouth Association Clears Way To Resign From State Federation After Reardon Endorsement

The Falmouth Teachers club took the first step Thursday toward resignation from the Massachusetts Teachers Federation. An amendment to the club constitution to make membership in the Federation a matter of choice rather than obligatory was introduced. The amendment will probably be adopted at a meeting next week, after ten days required by the constitution has elapsed. Resignation from the Federation is expected to follow immediately.

Resignation will be in protest against endorsement by the Federation's board of directors last Tuesday of James G. Reardon for state commissioner of education. Mr. Reardon was appointed by Governor Curley, and the appointment confirmed by the council, less than 24 hours after the Federation endorsement. Russell B. Marshall, principal of Junior high school, was one of the directors who voted against the Reardon endorsement. The Federation had previously sent the Governor a resolution warmly commending the work of Dr. Payson Smith, who held the post for 29 years.

Similar action is being taken by teachers' groups in many other towns and cities, says Mr. Marshall. He thinks that the movement, if sufficiently widespread, may force resignation of the group of directors who now dominate the Federation and who voted for the Reardon endorsement. If they do resign, he believes the Falmouth group and others will return to the Federation fold.
Why be Elected?

The problem is the responsibilities involved have been much discussed and unanswered question. The problem is no more vividly illustrated than right here in Fairhaven among Town Meeting members.

Last Thursday night -- and this by no means the first time such a thing has happened -- the town meeting called for that evening failed to function because of lack of a quorum. It was only a few short hours since the Selectmen and their clerical force failed to round up the necessary number it is true, but for all legal requirements it was in order. The point is that the affair was cancelled and the date of the meeting moved ahead.

ROAD ROLLER

Lovers of fair play and decency were shocked at the methods used by Governor Curley in getting rid of Dr. Payson Smith, Massachusetts Commissioner of Education. Smith was thrown to Curley's hand picked pack of councillors. Running true to form and instructions they immediately tore the educational head limb from limb and sat back on their haunches, licking their chops, awaiting the next command of their master. This followed almost immediately when Mr. James G. Reardon was led into the arena. The Governor snapped his fingers. The council wagged its tail and plain Mr. Reardon emerged from the bullpit, the "Commissioner of Education of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts." Month filling and satisfying.

Just like that. One wave of Michaels wand and an exalted office becomes a political football. This comment is no reflection on the ability of the new commissioner. We know nothing of this. He may be fitted to continue the high standing set by his predecessor or he may not. The point is that the affair is just another indication of the manner in which Massachusetts is being swept into dictatorship.

First the Governor gained control of the Council by bribery. A Republican, and from this district too, we record with hanging head and跟着 election promptly forget that they were named for a certain purpose -- viz to get into the public eye and having attained that purpose refuse to discharge the responsibilities involved has been a much discussed and unanswered question, is as true now as ever. Running true to form and instructions they immediately tore the educational head limb from limb and sat back on their haunches, licking their chops, awaiting the next command of their master. What an insult to our intelligence to think we can't see through it all! It is like a cock-eyed highwayman covering up his jaw with a bandanna and leaving the upper part of his face bare thinking he has disguised himself against future identification.

But in section o of the Act establishing a limited form of town meeting in Fairhaven it is proved that a less number than a quorum may organize temporarily and adjourn a meeting. However, it further provides that the town clerk must post a notice of the proposed meeting in each of the town's precincts and also notify the members at least 48 hours before the time of the adjourned meeting.

When this fact was tardily discovered the announced adjournment was cancelled and the date of the meeting moved ahead.

Picked Policemen
Pursue Convicts

BOSTON, Dec. 26, (AP)—The search for two convicts who killed a State Prison guard Monday, as they shot their way to freedom, was taken today by eleven picked men of the Boston police department.

Headed by Lieut. Louis Di Sessa, they set out immediately to hunt Edward Guarnello, 26, and Antonio Repucci, 25, both of Everett.

There were rumors the convicts, both long-term men, had been traced to Portland, Me., Portsmouth, N. H., Gloucester and Everett, Mass., but police said they had no definite leads.

Governor Cuyler offered a reward of $1,000 for their capture, dead or alive.

The convicts struck Walter Doucette, a State Prison guard, with their handcuffs, while being taken in a taxicab from the South Railroad terminal here to State Prison. They freed themselves from the handcuffs with Mr. Doucette's key and one of them shot the guard as he fought furiously.

Throwing the taxi driver from the machine, they fled. The cab was recovered later in the North End district of Boston and the revolver was found in Everett. Mr. Doucette, before he died of a bullet wound in the abdomen, said Repucci shot him.

Political Grab Bag

Smaller Council Committees Better—

When it comes to wasting time in deciding important municipal matters, the City Council gives way to no group or individual. The members of the municipal government can delay a matter until it is about ready for an old age pension.

The reason for most of the delay is that the Councillors cannot make decisions in committee meetings. And the reason for that is the size of the committees.

When the Councillors took office nearly a year ago, they decided that they should serve as a Committee of the Whole on all matters. Their predecessors under Plan D had found such a plan feasible.

But under the old plan, there were only four Councillors, whereas now there are nine.

The result is when matters come before the committees for discussion, if they are of any importance whatever, they are referred to subcommittees. That means more delay.

It would seem the Council could handle affairs with more dispatch if it had committees of three or four members.

This is especially true in matters concerning real estate, claims, licenses, highways, ordinances, and new industries. For financial affairs, it may be better than the entire personnel serve on the committee.

The smaller committees could arrange meetings and hearings easier and when they reach a decision, they could submit their recommendations to the Council for final action. The chairman could explain the reason for a recommendation and the result would be the expediting of all matters coming before the Council.

On many orders, from two to six weeks could be saved by having the smaller committees, for not only could they conduct hearings, but being an easily gathered unit, they could visit locations and make views, especially on licenses and street orders. This would enable them to intelligently consider the value of protests made in certain matters.

The Councillors have had a year's experience and should be able to handle whatever work comes before them without deliberating over it for weeks.

One thing which meetings of the Council as a Committee of the Whole do, is delay regularly scheduled sessions.

Tardiness has been a forte of local Councillors for many years. People complained frequently about the delay in starting meetings under Plan D, and when the new Council took office last January, the members resolved to start the regular sessions on time. They adhered to their promise until June.

Since then each meeting has been later in starting than the previous one with the result that it is always after 8:30 when the sessions, scheduled for 8, get underway.

Smaller committees would eliminate these delays for they could handle matters coming before them in less time than is now required for nine men to interrogate witnesses and inject into discussions irrelevant speeches.
Do Councillors Have Influence?

One of the best stories of how much influence the Councillors possess in City Hall is told by President Edward R. Harrington himself.

It concerns an attempt on his part to obtain employment as a truck driver for a needy man with several children.

He called Public Works Commissioner Logan about the man, explaining just what economic conditions forced the truck driver to apply for aid.

The Council President swears that Mr. Logan told him he could not put anyone to work before the first of the following month—then two weeks distant. Mr. Harrington asked the Commissioner to care for the man and the latter agreed.

A short time later, the needy man met Michael Judge, unsuccessful candidate for Mayor in the 1934 preliminary election, and, according to Councillor Harrington, told him the same story. Mr. Judge, the Council President claims, brought the man to the Department of Public Works office and Mr. Logan employed him immediately.

More About WPA Politics

The Council subcommittee on WPA relations is continuing its efforts to obtain a list of the administrative division employees in the work relief setup at the Weetamoe Mill. It claims that the list is studded with politicians.

The contention is correct cannot be denied, for a visit to the North End mill office, is a lesson in politics.

That is, it is a lesson in the political art of obtaining employment.

It has long been recognized that United States Senator David I. Walsh has his finger on the local WPA situation. Lawrence Bresnan, known as "David I's man" here. Then the Governor and Lieutenant Governor have friends employed at the office. Governor's Councillor Russell has quite a few of his supporters working in the administrative and supervisory forces, and even some legislators have managed to work in friends.

The municipal government is well represented. In fact, when WPA officials are asked about who is responsible for the personnel in the administrative staff, they do not hesitate to declare that city officials have their share of friends employed.

There has been some criticism directed at the Murray administration because of the employment of Timothy Reagan as a watchman. Reports have been circulated it is the former Fire Commissioner, who is related to Public Works Commissioner Logan and was a Curley-Murray man in 1934. A check of the records this afternoon, however, failed to verify the report but did show another man of that name is working as a watchman. This is believed to have caused the confusion.

These are not happy days for anyone in the WPA administrative forces, however, for an order from Washington the day before Christmas was that there must be a drastic reduction within a week. State Administrator Arthur G. Rotch announced that he will cut his administrative budget by $80,000 a month and that is interpreted to mean some faces that are now familiar in and about the Weetamoe Mill, will be missing after New Year's Day.

One thing sure to be interesting is the manner in which those to be discharged are selected.
CURLEY ANSWERED
AFTER BLOW AT WPA

Boston—(AP)—Governor James M. Curley's criticism of the Works Progress Administration's "failure in the matter of approving payrolls" was answered today of Arthur G. Rotch, state WPA administrator.

The governor, in a Christmas day address, charged that "worthy citizens in dire need were required to pass through the season of 'peace on earth to men of good will' without the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

Rotch said WPA men who did not receive pay checks before Christmas went without them because they failed to contact their paymasters.

The recommendation of the special recess commission on taxation to abolish the tax assessed by the local Massachusetts communities on machinery used in manufacturing is a much more serious matter to Lawrence than is apparent on the surface. Attention was called to it last week, when Governor Curley announced that he had the proposal under consideration. He expressed the opinion that the elimination of this tax would save the manufacturing industries now in the commonwealth and would tend to bring new ones here. His Excellency added, however, that he was not sure that such a plan would be workable, due to the fact that the revenue that was lost would have to be made up by some new form of taxation.

Inquiry at the office of the local board of assessors brings to light the interesting and important information that the machinery in the manufacturing plants of Lawrence is assessed for approximately $15,000,000, or about fifteen per cent of the total municipal valuation. At this year's $37.60 tax rate, the local tax on that machinery brought $564,000 into the city treasury. Just how serious would be the loss of that revenue is immediately apparent. It would only be offset to the extent of about $157,000 if Governor Curley's proposal to eliminate the state tax levied by the commonwealth on its cities and towns should become a reality. Before the recommended change would be agreeable to communities like Lawrence, the amount and permanency of the revenue substituted for the machinery taxes would have to be definitely assured. It will be recalled that in the early days of the gasoline tax in Massachusetts, a substantial portion of it was distributed annually among the cities and towns, Lawrence's share one year having been nearly $100,000. Later the legislature, decided to have the commonwealth retain all the gasoline tax money and now the cities and towns get nothing from that source. It would be a grave matter for the manufacturing communities if substitute revenue for machinery tax money proved to be as short-lived.

It is fair to assume that the effect of the proposed change would be much the same in the other industrial cities and towns as in Lawrence. Under all the circumstances, therefore, it would seem that their best interests would be served by the retention of the local machinery tax, and their elected officials should unite to fight the proposed change. Strong and concerted opposition may be necessary because of the fact that there are many residential cities and farming towns that would not be hurt, and consequently the recommendation probably would find favor with their representatives.
ESCAPED CONVICTS SOUGHT IN MAINE

PORTLAND, Me., Dec. 25 (P)—Police searched trains and buses from Boston without success tonight for Edward Guarnelli, 26, and Antonio Repucci, 25, who shot and killed a prison guard in Boston, Monday.

Sergt. Harold K. Maguire said the search followed word from the warden of the Massachusetts state prison at Charlestown that the fugitives, on whose heads Gov. James M. Curley put a price of $1,000 each, were believed to be on a train due here at 7:10 p.m.

A police squad went through the train, found no trace of the men, but interviewed a passenger, somewhat intoxicated, who said that two men, apparently of Latin extraction, who disembarked at Portsmouth, N. H., had talked familiarly of the Charlestown Penitentiary, Maguire declared.

Maguire said the Massachusetts warden informed him of receipt of a telegram saying Guarnelli and Repucci left Portsmouth for Portland on the train.

The pair, serving long-term burglary sentences, were being returned to prison after receiving additional sentences, at Dedham, Mass., Monday when they overpowered and shot Walter Doucette, the guard, who died of his wounds.

Massachusetts officials said Doucette named Repucci as the one who fired the shot with the guard's own pistol.

ROTH RE Pelies TO CURLEY CRITICISM

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (P)—Governor James M. Curley's criticism of the Works Progress Administration's "failure in the matter of approving payrolls" was answered today by Arthur G. Rotch, state WPA administrator.

The governor in a Christmas day address charged that "worthy citizens in dire need were required to pass through the season of 'peace on earth to men of good will' without the receipt of money due them from labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

Roch, who said he had received complaints of failure to pay some workers, said WPA men who did not receive pay checks before Christmas went without them because they failed to contact their paymasters, rather than because federal treasury authorities in Boston did not issue them.

He said he did not know how many of the 77,000 workers with money due them had not been paid but other officials estimated about 74,000 were paid Monday and Tuesday.

CURLEY SAYS WPA FAILED IN PURPOSE

BOSTON, Dec. 25 (P)—The Works Projects Administration was criticized tonight by Governor James M. Curley for its "abject failure to function properly not only in the matter of creation of works projects but in the matter of approving payrolls."

The governor charged that "in every section of Massachusetts and in many other sections of the nation worthy citizens in dire need have been required to pass through the season of 'peace on earth to men of good will' without the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

The governor, in a radio address, cited this condition in support of his contention planning boards were needed throughout the nation.

TIMES-MINUTE-MAN

Lexington, Mass.

God Save the Commonwealth!

We have been pretty heartily disgusted with many things that have transpired on Beacon Hill during the past year. We have looked with concern upon actions of the present Governor that cannot, by any stretch of the imagination be coupled with the oath that he took at the beginning of his term of office to administer his duties for the best interest of all the people of the State. We have hoped against hope that he might realize that he was using his talents in a way that could bring only disaster and scorn to his name in the end.

That he cares for nothing except his own political preferment is no new pronouncement by us, but his continued disregard of what is best for the State at large, makes this statement duly apparent to the person who usually thinks but little upon such matters. His latest move in shelving a trusted servant of the schools of the Commonwealth for no reason what-so-ever, hits a new low.

We should be discouraged more than we are, did we not feel that experience teaches us that all who go too far in any line, are their own worst enemies, and bring disaster upon themselves.
KILLERS OF GUARD ARE STILL FREE
Guarnelli and Repucci Elude the Everett Police.

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (U.P.)—After investigating scores of "tips," police today apparently were without a clue to the whereabouts of two state prison convicts who killed a guard Monday.

A systematic search of the village section of Everett, home city of Edward Guarnelli, aged 25, and Antonio Repucci, aged 25, by police with riot guns and tear gas bombs last night failed to disclose a trace of the fugitives.

Guarnelli and Repucci mortally wounded Guard Walter R. Doucette, aged 43, father of six children, after overpowering him in a taxicab in which they were returning to prison from court. The guard died several hours later at a hospital.

A report that a Newton housemaid, said to be a former sweetheart of one of the convicts, was being watched in the hope she might lead them to the fugitives was denied by both Boston and Newton police.

Another "tip" that the convicts had raided a gun store to obtain arms remained unconfirmed today, no such break having been reported in this vicinity.

Maine police searched inbound trains and buses without avail. A search of both Gloucester and Boston fishing fleets likewise proved futile.

Thomas V. Morrocco, acknowledged friend of Repucci and Guarnelli, was released yesterday by Cranston, R. I., police after explaining satisfactorily his trip from Everett to Cranston.

Governor Curley has offered a $1000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the fugitives.

HOLIDAY HIGHWAY HAZARDS

It is confidently hoped that the machinery set in motion by Governor Curley for a reduction of the fatalities resulting from automobile accidents, will operate effectively around the remaining Christmas and New Year holidays.

Above all other periods of the year tragedies come with the most crushing effect at the Christmas festival when the Christian world is cheerfully celebrating the glorious feast. Yet that is usually the time when the highways are most dangerously infested with drunken drivers and other marauders.

These reckless motorists had better remember that the police of every city and town, as well as other safety agencies, will be on the lookout during the holiday season for violators of the automobile laws.

Over the week-end there will be accidents due to lack of care and sometimes involving even the most careful drivers; but the greatest menace on the public highways is the motorist who is so drunk that he cannot see straight, cannot drive with a steady hand and who is likely to crash into a passing vehicle, a pole or tree or even to plunge from the highway with fatal results.

Governor Curley has inaugurated a movement throughout the state to promote safety on the public highways and the state troopers as well as the police of cities and towns are cooperating to the fullest extent.

Those who want to guard against fatal accidents will under no consideration ride in an auto the operator of which has been drinking. Even if he takes but a single drink before starting out, he is a menace on the highways.

This is the type of auto hazard that must be guarded against especially during the holiday season when intemperate drivers indulge more freely than at any other time of the year.

Every police officer will watch for drivers who halt at barrooms to load up, and then start off with reckless abandon. These are the type who will find a lodging at the police stations of the state around the holiday season and pay the penalty at the next session of the district court to which the arrest is referred.

Roch Blames Workers for WPA Pay Delay

Failed to Contact Paymasters Before Holiday, He Explains

Part of Group Not Eligible at Time; Cut in Staff for 1936 Planned

Bostonians in Massachusetts who were without pay checks on Christmas day probably went without them because they failed to contact their paymasters before the holiday, rather than because Federal Treasury authorities in Boston failed to issue them.

This was the explanation made by Arthur G. Rotch, State WPA Administrator, speaking from his home in Lakeville.

Rotch's statement was in reply to criticism by Governor Curley of WPA's 'abject failure' to properly function not only in matters of creation of work projects but in the matter of approving payrolls.

The Governor charged that 'in every section of Massachusetts and in many other sections of the nation worthy citizens in dire need have been required to pass through the season of peace on earth good will toward men without the receipt of money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks.'

Admitting that he had received complaints of failures to pay men, especially on the eve of Christmas, Rotch said that many critics were inclined to attribute the situation to the new centralized method of issuing the Federal work relief checks.

No Trouble Under ERA

"We have no such trouble under the ERA," he said. "Then we had 14 regional centers for the payment of workers, and they got their money promptly."

"I do not know as yet how many of these people were disappointed over Christmas, but I do know that we cleared all but 25 minor payrolls before Sunday night. And the checks were issued promptly by the treasury officials. Of course, many of the workers had a half holiday Tuesday, and for that reason it was impossible for our paymasters to reach them."

He said that more than 30,000 checks were written on Monday, and 50,000 more on Tuesday. The last of these were turned over to the WPA paymasters at 2 p.m. Tuesday. Continuing, Rotch said: "Many of the complaints seem to be coming from WPA workers who do not realize that according to the regulations there should be a five-day gap between the end of their work week and their pay day. Because of the holidays, we were as liberal as was humanly possible in this respect, and pay rolls were made up to and including Friday's time."

Expected Bonus

"But even men who were paid up to Friday night were looking for another check this week. Somewhere they got the idea that there was to be an extra one for them on Christmas eve. Of course, that was not the case."

Robert F. Cross, director of the WPA district four, which includes all of Plymouth, Bristol, Barnstable, Dukes and Nantucket counties, said he was confident that practically every worker in his entire district, with wages due, had been paid before Christmas. In Hyannis where the only real difficulty arose, a late consignment of checks were distributed after 11 o'clock at night.

Orders for a drastic reduction of WPA administrative forces throughout the State came from Washington the day before Christmas and are to be carried out by the first of the year.

Roth said that he expects to cut his administrative budget by about $80,000 a month. Estimate was that nearly 1,000 men and women will be discharged at New Year's.
Curley’s Change of Attitude

It is impossible to reconcile Governor Curley’s latest utterance about the cotton textile industry in New England, with the attitude he displayed, and the opinions he voiced, last Spring and Summer when the plea of the industry for relief was being pressed at Washington.

At the recent Cote dinner in Fall River, the Governor was quoted as saying, apropos of conditions in the textile industry in such cities as Fall River, New Bedford, Lowell and Lawrence, that no one should blame either the federal or the state administration, but that the blame rested upon the “manufacturers, bankers and other leaders.” In this connection he said that 20 years ago a rayon concern sought to locate in this city, but was unable to borrow money because of the opposition of cotton manufacturers and bankers.

The implication that the troubles of the cotton textile industry should be attributed to the faults of its management and of the bankers in textile communities, does not coincide with the Governor’s active support of the New England Movement which was got under way in New Bedford last April. At that time he said there was need of action by Washington, and cited the wage differential as one of the serious handicaps under which the Northern section of the industry suffered.

May 7 he told the Cabinet Committee that the reason that many mills moved South was not to be nearer the source of raw material, “but rather to escape the progressive, humane laws enacted for the protection of life and the health of workers in the North, plus a wage scale in keeping with the recognized American standard of living.” He said the troubles confronting the textile industry in this section were more fundamental than the processing tax or the wage differential, and demanded administration action to safeguard it against Japanese competition. “It is exceedingly difficult for a New Englander to understand why persons interested in the conservation of the textile industry, a basic New England industry, should be required to come to Washington to submit facts as to why the industry should be preserved.” He made a specific reference to the charge that New England mill management had permitted its equipment to become obsolescent, and denied the charge; adding that even if equipment were the most advanced to be found anywhere in the world, “it would be an impossibility, due to laws enacted for the conservation of the health, life and limb of the workers, plus an American standard of wages, to compete with the scale at present in operation in Japan and elsewhere.”

August 22, after the Cabinet Committee had reported, Mr. Curley said a quota should be fixed for Japanese goods to make imports of them “negligible,” or that the tariff should be made so high as practically to exclude them. As to the processing tax, he expressed his belief that the Supreme Court could be relied upon to declare it unconstitutional. And with reference to the wage differential between North and South, he thought the committee’s proposal for a further study of this matter should “prove most beneficial.”

In the Spring and Summer, as these quotations show, the Governor’s attitude toward the New England textile industry was wholly sympathetic. He went to Washington to help it plead its case for remedial action. He recognized the threat of Japanese competition and demanded that the American cotton industry be protected against it. He recognized the handicap of higher wage levels in the North and of more progressive labor legislation in this section. It is true that he stressed the point that the mills under which the New England textile industry suffered ante-dated the Roosevelt administration, and spoke of the errors of the past “committed by those so long, and perhaps too long, in control of the industrial affairs of New England and the nation”; but the fact remains that he cited as factors in the distress of the industry in this section many things for which management was not responsible and which, alone, it was powerless to remedy.

Yet in Fall River his utterances, as reported, make no mention of these things, but convey the impression that the troubles of the industry in New England have been brought upon it by the manufacturers, bankers and other leaders. One can only wonder why the Governor has turned so cold toward an industry whose cause, a few months ago, he energetically espoused.
Bay State PWA Head Says Rotch Answers the Works Progress Administration today by Arthur G. Rotch, state WPA administrator.

“failure in the matter of approving pay rolls” was answered by James M. Curley’s criticism of the works progress administration today for the delay in issuing checks to WPA workers before Christmas.

The Governor in a Christmas Day radio address charged that “worthy citizens in dire need were required to pass through the season of ‘peace on earth to men of good will’ without the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks.”

MANSFIELD’S HOPES FOR PARDON INCREASING

Governor Curley Orders Full Investigation of His Case.

The hopes of Herbert H. Mansfield, Jr., former Providence restaurant worker, for a pardon grew stronger yesterday when it became known that the office of Governor James M. Curley of Massachusetts had ordered an investigation of his case.

Mansfield, who is serving a year’s sentence in Bristol County Jail, New Bedford, on a charge of perjury and conspiracy to violate the marriage laws, petitioned the Governor for a pardon. He was indicted for his marriage to Gloria Rego, 15, of 174 Transit street at Seekonk in June. Miss Rego, who used the name of Vesta Jean Isherwood of Nantucket, Mansfield’s former sweetheart, was similarly indicted. She was placed on probation.

The Governor’s secretary said an investigation of the case had been ordered.

ROTCH EXPLAINS DELAY IN GIVING OUT WPA CHECKS

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—Mechanical devices and errors in 25 minor payrolls were blamed by Arthur G. Rotch, State Works Progress administrator, today for the delay in issuing checks to WPA workers before Christmas.

Rotch, answering Governor James M. Curley’s criticism of the Works Progress Administration’s “failure in the matter of approving payrolls,” said that 79,000 of the workers had been paid before Christmas.

Approximately 2790 workers went without their checks, Rotch stated, because the check machines in the disbursing offices became jammed, and because errors were discovered in 35 minor payrolls.

With the exception of those listed on the payrolls which were in error, Rotch said, checks for all of the 7900 were issued today.

The Governor in a Christmas Day radio address (over station WNAC) charged that “worthy citizens in dire need were required to pass through the season of ‘peace on earth to men of good will’ without the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks.”

Rotch, who said he had received complaints of failure to pay some workers, said WPA men who did not receive pay checks before Christmas went without them because they failed to contact their paymasters, rather than because federal treasury authorities in Boston did not issue them.

He said he did not know how many of the 77,000 workers with money due them had not been paid, but other officials estimated about 74,000 were paid Monday and Tuesday.

PAYSON SMITH “OUTED” (New York Times)

Failure of the executive council of Massachusetts to re-elect Dr. Payson Smith as State Commissioner of Education will give a shock to the educational world. He is held in high esteem by his profession.

Last year at the commencement of the University of the State of New York, in urging more training of teachers in order to give children a better education, he said; “We must keep up the normal schools, not that the teacher may teach but that the child may learn.” If he had stopped there, his chances for re-election as Commissioner might not have been impaired. But he added that “politicians are liable to destroy our plans for normal schools, which are the center of the whole school system.”

Gov. Curley stated, according to the report, that he had conferred with the Democratic members of the council before its meeting and found that, with the exception of the Lieutenant-Governor, all were opposed to Dr. Smith. This would seem to indicate that “politics” had a determining part in the ousting of this veteran educator who has maintained the tradition of such great New England educators as Horace Mann, Henry Barnard and William T. Harris.
JUDGE BAKER MAKES FIRST APPEARANCE ON BENCH HERE

Former Member of Governor's Council, Former Instructor in Good Citizenship, Presides as New Citizens Are Made in Naturalization Court

Judge J. Arthur Baker, who was appointed to the bench of the Superior Court this year by Governor James M. Curley, conducted a session of the naturalization division in this city today and will hold a similar sitting in North Adams tomorrow. Court recessed at 1:30 for an afternoon session. Of the 75 candidates, 66 were admitted, some continued and others to be taken up this afternoon.

Judge Baker was welcomed by numerous members of the Berkshire Bar and other friends. It was his first appearance in Pittsfield in the robes of a judge. On the bench were two huge baskets of flowers the gifts of friends.

Of the applicants 66 were admitted to citizenship after questioning. Eight were continued for study, deposition or because of absence. None had been refused up to recess time.

Italy led the list of applicants with 31 and Great Britain was second with 18. Other countries represented were Albania, Greece, Spain, Portugal, Poland, Germany, Russia and Austria.

Taught Citizenship

For many years Judge Baker has had naturalization as a hobby and was a pioneer in this field in the city. At the Y. M. C. A. he had classes for instruction and hundreds of men received there from him instruction in American ideals and standards of citizenship. He taught many men the language. It was more than a mere formality with him for he followed through until the men had obtained their naturalization papers from the Superior Court.

Judge Baker was admitted to the Berkshire Bar in 1904 and for several years practiced law with Irving H. Gamwell, the present Clerk of Court. This partnership was informally resumed in the court room this morning with Judge Baker on the bench and Mr. Gamwell at his post as clerk. Judge Baker in earlier days served on the city's Board of Health, was mentioned several times for City Solicitor, ran for Mayor against Dr. M. W. Flynn, and served on the Governor's Council of which he was a member when Governor Curley elevated him to the bench.

Two Sessions

As court opened at 9:30 this morning the candidates for citizenship filled the spectators' section. Members of the civics class conducted by Miss Mable R. Keegan at Plunkett Junior High School occupied seats within the docket. They were there to observe the conduct of the session. Miss Keegan teaches Americanization in the public schools conducting evening classes each year. She aided many of the candidates this morning. The second session opened at 11 when the remaining half of the candidates arrived.

The Rev. C. R. Prewitt, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, offered the prayer. Among first members of the Bar to arrive were Judge William S. Morison, Register of Probate, and Attorney John B. Cummings. During the morning other attorneys and officials including Chief of Police John L. Sullivan paid respects to the recently robed judge.
GOVERNOR EXPECTED TO ACCEPT PROJECT TO SAVE LOWLANDS

BRODINE'S PLAN TO COST $800,000 AND EMPLOY 1000
Concave Wall, Ocean Pier to Winthrop, Would Be Built
ROUGHAN'S POINT AREA RAISING IS INCLUDED
Reconstruction of South End of Parkway Also Proposed

Governor Curley is expected soon to accept or reject a big building plan for the protection of lowlands between Revere and Winthrop from devastation by the sea.

To cost $800,000 and provide employment for 1000 men for a year, the plan was drawn by Lieutenant Albert Ampolo, a Chelsea engineer, and was presented this week by former Senator Conde Brodine to Governor Curley for consideration.

Protection against storms and floods, the provision of a parking place, the construction of a playground and the erection of a modern bathhouse are included in the scheme.

The plan provides that the cottages bordering along the ocean at Roughan's Point be taken over by the State and this area would be rebuilt into a public beach. The plan also provides for the erection of a thoroughly modern structure, to be used as a bath house. It is not intended that this building be used as an ordinary bath house for the rental of lockers, but for the sole purpose of allowing the autoist to change, and return their clothing to their parked automobiles.

It is estimated that this project would give employment to at least 1000 men, for a period of one year, and that the cost of said project, as roughly estimated, would not exceed the sum of $800,000.

The residents of this section of Revere, not to mention the vast crowds of people who daily visit the beach during the summer season in search of relief from the heat, will watch the progress of this proposed project with keen interest. It is expected that a decision on the matter will be made shortly.

$1000 Reward For Capture of Guard's Killers

Boston, Dec. 26 (P)—The search for two convicts who killed a state prison guard Monday, as they shot their way to freedom, was taken over today by 11 picked men of the Boston police department.

Headed by Detective Lieut. Louis Di Sessa, they set out immediately to hunt Edward Guarnello, 26, and Antonio Repucci, 25, both of Everett.

There were rumors the convicts, both long-term men, had been traced to Portland, Me., Portsmouth, N. H., Gloucester and Everett, Mass., but police said they had no definite leads.

Gov. James M. Curley offered a reward of $1000 for each of their capture dead or alive.

The convicts struck Walter Doucette, a state prison guard, with their manacles, while being taken in a taxicab from the South railroad terminal here to state prison. They freed themselves from the handcuffs with Doucette's key and one of them shot the guard as he fought furiously.

Throwing the taxidriver from the machine, they fled. The cab was recovered later in the North End district of Boston and the revolver was found in Everett. Doucette, before he died of a bullet wound in the abdomen, said Repucci shot him.
Comm. Callahan Announces
32 Projects Under Way in Effort to Put Stop to Increasing Accidents

(Special to The Daily News)
State House, Boston, Dec. 26—In the area known as "the 20 worst accident spots" in Massachusetts where 386 pedestrians have been injured and 46 killed on state highways, there are 32 sidewalk projects under way as a "safety measure."
Public Works Commissioner William
P. Callahan said today.

Of these 32, the state public works department has 16 bond-issue projects in active operation, while the WPA has four. The state has completed two, while the WPA has not finished any as yet. The state is planning eight more, while the WPA has two planned for this area.

Commissioner Callahan has just completed a survey of these "20 worst spots" from the viewpoint of how pedestrians have faced on state highways which lack suitable sidewalk protection. A two-year period of 1933 and 1934 showed surprising facts, he said.

In these 20 towns alone, there have been accidents to 130 children and to 256 adults. In 17 of the towns, there were 46 deaths in that two-year period.

"This is a fairly conclusive answer to those who say that highway sidewalks are not needed," commented the commissioner, adding that both Governor Curley and he feel that the accident and death rate can be cut down sharply in coming years, after the sidewalks are in use.

The survey made by Commissioner
Callahan shows the Number of Accidents

- Methuen: Six children and 22 adults; one death; one WPA sidewalk project in operation.
- Watertown: Five children and eight adults; one current WPA sidewalk project.
- North Attleboro: Four children and 10 adults; and one death; WPA plans one project.
- Chicopee: Ten children and four adults; two deaths; WPA plans project.
- Randolph: 12 children and 15
  adults; six deaths; WPA and state each have one project in operation, and the state has a second one planned.
- Brockton: Nine children and seven adults; three deaths; WPA and state each have one project in operation, and the state has three more planned.

In each of the following 14 communities, the WPA has no project, but the state bond issue money is being used or planned for sidewalk projects.

- Brookline: Accidents to four children and 16 adults, and one death; one state sidewalk completed.
- Dedham: Five children and 11 adults; with five deaths; state has finished one project, has two in operation, and one planned.
- East Chelmsford: Four children and seven adults, with two deaths; two current state projects.
- West Roxbury: Ten children and 13 adults, with three deaths; three current state projects.
- Somerville: Seven children and 13 adults, with three deaths; one current state project.
- Revere: 22 children and 36 adults, with three deaths; three current state projects.
- Braintree: Three children and 11 adults, with three deaths; one current state project.
- Attleboro: Five children and 18 adults, with two deaths; one current state project.
- Billerica: Five children and 18 adults, with two deaths; one current state project.
- North Chelmsford: Six children and three adults; two deaths; one current state project.
- Auburn: Four children and ten adults; with three deaths; one state project planned.
- Wellesley: Four children and 14 adults, with three deaths; one current state project.
- Saugus: Two children and 13 adults, with three deaths; one current state project.
- Andover: Three children and 12 adults; with one death; one state project planned.
- Commissioner Callahan pointed out that these accidents and deaths to pedestrians were confined exclusively to state highways, largely without sidewalks, and had no relation to city and town streets.

32 SIDEWALKS STARTED FOR 20 WORST ACCIDENT SPOTS IN STATE

Where 14 Persons Were Injured

The Carryall

Thanks to the loving thoughtfulness of Mrs. Eleanor H. Tyng, Washington School second grade teacher, much of the bitterness of a childhood calamity was offset for two of her young pupils the other day. A double barrelled attack of mumps arrived a week ahead of Santa Claus on the very day of the class Christmas play in which both children had parts, one as a princess, no less.

The spelling and writing lesson of the class that afternoon was a letter of sympathy to the two youngsters, who minded their illness not half so much as their inability to participate in the great event on which the class had focused its attention for days. A dozen of the best letters were selected by the teacher and sent home to the two confined children, canceling with a happy highlight what would otherwise have long been remembered as a terrible disaster.

It was one of those rare and charming acts of which is born lasting affection from children and gratitude from parents.

A Christmas tree from Springfield amazed residents of Miami, Fla., this week when the unique gift of a Springfield man was unraveled and set up in the southern city. J. H. Mayer filled the order for a choice, fresh balsam the other day after a customer had explained the reasons for his particularity. The buyer did not identify himself but we take his anonymous word for it that Christmas trees are rare in Miami.

So that the women of Memorial Church need no worries as to the freshness and quality of the oysters served at their recent scalloped oyster supper Phillip N. Case, a Cape Cod summer resident and enthusiast drove to the Cape and selected the oysters, bringing them back with him to make sure that there could be no slip. Gov. James M. Curley acts one of the most heavily laden and most Episcopal dinner tables of any host in Boston . . . . John J. Curry, president of the Waldorf system and chairman of the board of directors of the Agawam race track, is a great lover of flowers, being surrounded by them at all seasons in his Cohasset home.

Now we understand why it is that when a barber tells you "You're next, only two-three minutes," it is likely to be at least five or six minutes and maybe 10 or more before the chair is finally vacated and you get your turn. Mark Moran, himself a barber and a good one, has let us in on the secret. Mark says that a barber's minutes have 120 seconds each.

Rotch Replies to Curley Criticism

Declares WPA Workers Unpaid Because of "Failure to Contact Paymasters."

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (AP)—Gov. James M. Curley's criticism of the Works Progress Administration's "failure in the matter of approving payrolls" was answered today by Arthur G. Rotch, State WPA Administrator.

The governor in a Christmas day radio address (over station WNAC) charged that "worthy citizens in dire need were required to pass through the season of 'peace on earth to men of good will' without the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

Rotch, who said he had received complaints of failure to pay some workers, added WPA men who did not receive pay checks before Christmas went without them because they failed to contact their paymasters rather than because Federal Treasury authorities in Boston did not issue them. He said he did not know how many of the 77,000 workers with money due them had not been paid, but other officials estimated about 74,000 were paid Monday and Tuesday.

Curley Criticizes ‘Failure’ of WPA

Governor Charges Many Have Failed to Get Money Due Them

BOSTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—The Works Progress Administration was criticized tonight by Gov. James M. Curley for its "abject failure to properly function not only in the matter of creation of works projects but in the matter of approving payrolls."

The Governor charged that "in every section of Massachusetts and in many other sections of the Nation worthy citizens in dire need have been required to pass through the season of 'peace on earth' to men of good will without the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

The Governor, in a radio address (over station WNAC) cited this condition in support of his contention that planning boards were needed throughout the Nation.
SIDEWALKS BEING BUILT TO INDUCE GREATER SAFETY

Projects Started in “20 Danger Spots” Where 386 Have Been Hurt, 46 Killed.

BOSTON, Dec. 26—In the area known as “the 20 worst accident spots” in Massachusetts where 386 pedestrians have been injured and 46 killed on State highways, there are 32 sidewalk projects underway as a “safety measure,” Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan said today.

Of these 32, the State Public Works Department has 16 bond-issue projects in active operation, while the WPA has four. The State has completed two, while the WPA has not finished any as yet.

WATERTOWN: Five children and eight adults, no deaths; one current WPA sidewalk project.

NORTH ATTLEBORO: Four children and 19 adults, and one death; WPA plans one project.

CHICOPEE: Ten children and four adults, no deaths; one WPA project planned.

BROCKTON: Nine children and seven adults, with three deaths; WPA and State each have one project in operation, and the State has three more planned.

In each of the following 14 communities, the WPA has no program, but the State bond issue money is being used or planned for sidewalk projects:

BROOKLINE: Accidents to four children and 24 adults and one death; one State sidewalk completed.

DEDHAM: Five children and 31 adults, with five deaths; State has finished one project, has two in operation, and one planned.

EAST CHILMSFORD: Four children and seven adults, with two deaths; two current State projects.

WEST ROXBURY: Ten children and six adults, with one death; one current State project.

SOMERVILLE: Seven children and 12 adults, with one death; one current State project.

REVERE: Twenty-two children and 35 adults, with three deaths; three current State projects.

BRANTREE: Three children and 11 adults, with three deaths; one current State project.

BILLERICA: Five children and 15 adults, with two deaths; one State project planned.

NORTH CHILMSFORD: Six children and three adults, no deaths; one current State project.

AUBURN: Four children and 10 adults, with three deaths; one State project.

WELLESLEY: Four children and 21 adults, with three deaths; one current State project.

Saugus: Two children and 13 adults, with three deaths; one current State project.

Governor Has Quiet Christmas At Home

Gov. Curley passed a quiet Christmas yesterday, seeing all of his children and receiving a few personal friends. In the morning he attended Mass at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Jamaica Plain with members of his family.

He called on his daughter, Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, and then went to Calvary cemetery to place wreaths on the graves of his wife and children there. He dined at home, and spent the rest of the day there, only leaving to give a short radio broadcast.
SICK OF CURLEYISM

(From The Lowell Courier-Citizen) Governor Curley's contemptuous response to the demand that he quit politics is, "Who is this Brady?" It is about as appropriate as his rejoinder to the demand of Mr. Bacon in the last campaign that Curley explain how he could afford to live as he did in such a splendid house, with no livelihood but political officeholding—the retort was something like, "Shame on you!"

Our belief is that the conduct of the present administration has operated to make it impossible for the governor to command a winning vote in any state-wide contest for any office—senator or other. If this state isn't heartily sick of Curleyism, it has a stronger stomach than we have ever supposed it had. It may seem rather cruel to ask Mr. Curley to give up politics altogether, for, so far as we recall, it has been his life work and we doubt that he could turn his hand to anything else at 60 which would yield so handsome a return.

There's always the Boston mayoralty, of course. He seems to be able to recapture that as often as he likes.

Osterville Man Confirmed As Agriculture Com.

Howard H. Murphy of Osterville, the Cape Cod "dirt farmer," became state commissioner of agriculture this week, succeeding Edgar L. Gillett of Canton, formerly of this city, who was appointed commissioner by his intimate friend, former Governor Joseph B. Ely.

Murphy, a member of the Grange, the same Grange to which Gov. Curley is a member, was nominated for the post three times by the Democratic executive council, the nomination being confirmed Monday on party vote, the six Democrats voting for and the three Republicans voting against him.

Whether Mr. Gillett, who was formerly engaged in large scale farming on Upper avenue and was also engaged in real estate and brokerage business, will remain in the business.

Curley Raises Voice Against WPA Policies

BOSTON. Dec. 23 (AP)—Governor James M. Curley's criticism of the Works Progress Administration's "failure in the matter of approving payrolls" was answered today by Arthur G. Rotch, State WPA administrator.

The governor in a Christmas Day radio address charged that "Worthy citizens in dire need were required to pass through the years of the Wilson administration without the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

Mr. Rotch, who said he had received complaints of failure to pay some workers, said WPA men who did not receive pay checks before Christmas went without them because they failed to contact their paymasters, rather than because Federal treasury authorities in Boston did not issue them. He said he did not know how many of the 77,000 workers with money due them had not been paid, but other officials estimated about 14,000 were paid Mondays and Tuesdays.

Guest speakers on Jan. 3 will be Governor Curley, WPA administrator Arthur G. Rotch, and PWA Administrator Andrew H. Peterson. Speakers on Jan. 4 will be Frederick Butler of Andover, president of the County Commissioners' and Sheriffs' association of Massachusetts, and former Assistant Attorney General Edward T. Simonneau of Marlboro.

(From The Lowell Courier-Citizen)

Governor Curley's contemptuous response to the demand that he quit politics is, "Who is this Brady?" It is about as appropriate as his rejoinder to the demand of Mr. Bacon in the last campaign that Curley explain how he could afford to live as he did in such a splendid house, with no livelihood but political officeholding—the retort was something like, "Shame on you!"

Our belief is that the conduct of the present administration has operated to make it impossible for the governor to command a winning vote in any state-wide contest for any office—senator or other. If this state isn't heartily sick of Curleyism, it has a stronger stomach than we had ever supposed it had. It may seem rather cruel to ask Mr. Curley to give up politics altogether, for, so far as we recall, it has been his life work and we doubt that he could turn his hand to anything else at 60 which would yield so handsome a return.

There's always the Boston mayoralty, of course. He seems to be able to recapture that as often as he likes.

A Good Appointment

During the early period of the Curley administration visitors to the governor's office from the western part of the state, who, during the Ely administration had found an opportunity to tell their story to the late De Witt C. DeWolff, missed the opportunity to deal with a governor's secretary from Western Massachusetts but now that situation has been corrected since Francis X. Quigley of Holyoke has been added to the secretaryal force of the governor.

Quigley, who was formerly connected with The Springfield Daily News until elected state senator from this district in the days when Westfield and Holyoke were included in the senatorial district, has kept up his Western Massachusetts connections while making new ones in other sections of the Commonwealth.

Mr. Quigley was apraiser of the Bureau of Agriculture during the Wilson administration and through the state at large has a host of political and personal acquaintances. He is a decided acquisition to Gov. Curley's staff and those who visit the State House from this section in particular are greatly pleased at the opportunity to meet and consult with some one with whom they have a personal acquaintance.

Sidewalk Projects at Worst Accident Spots

"Twenty Worst Spots" in Massachusetts Are Named by Commissioner Callahan

(Special to The Post)

STATE HOUSE, Boston, Dec. 26. — In the area known as "the 20 worst accident spots" in Massachusetts, where 386 pedestrians have been injured and 46 killed on state highways, there are 32 sidewalk projects underway as a "safety measure," Public Works Commissioner William F. Callahan said today.

Of these 32, the State Public Works Department has 16 bond-issue projects in active operation, while the WPA has four. The state has completed two, while the WPA has not finished any as yet. The state is planning eight more, while the WPA has two planned for this area.

Commissioner Callahan has just completed a survey of these 20 worst spots from the viewpoint of how ways which lack suitable sidewalk protection. A two-year period of 1933 and 1934 showed surprising facts, he said.

In these 20 towns alone, there have been accidents to 150 children and to 326 adults. In 17 of the towns, there were 46 deaths in that two-year period.

"This is a fairly conclusive answer to those who say the highway sidewalks are not needed," commented the commissioner, who said that both Gov. Curley and he feel that the accident and death rate can be cut down sharply in coming years, after the sidewalks are in use.

The survey made by Commissioner Callahan shows the number of accidents to children and adults in each of the 20 towns, with an analysis of the sidewalk projects as a preventative, as follows:

Methuen — Six children and 22 adults hurt, with six deaths; one WPA sidewalk project in operation.

North Attleboro — Four children and 10 adults, and one death; WPA plans one project.

Chicopee — Ten children and four adults, no deaths; one WPA project planned.

Randolph — Twelve children and 15 adults, with six deaths; WPA and state each have one project in operation, and the state has a second one planned.

Brookton — Nine children and seven adults, with three deaths; WPA and state each have one project in operation, and the state has three more planned.

In each of the following 14 communities, the WPA has no program, but the state bond issue money is being used or planned for sidewalk projects.

Brookline — Accidents to four children and 24 adults, and one death; one state sidewalk completed.

Dedham — Five children and 11 adults, with five deaths; state has finished one project, has two in operation, and one planned.

Somerville — Seven children and 13 adults, with one death; one current state project.

West Roxbury — Ten children and six adults, with one death; one current state project.

Brockton — Nine children and seven adults, with two deaths; two current state projects.

Methuen — Six children and 22 adults, with six deaths; one current state project.

North Attleboro — Five children and 15 adults, with two deaths; one state project planned.

Wellesley — Four children and 14 adults, with three deaths; one current state project.

Saugus — Two children and 13 adults, with three deaths; one current state project.

Andover — Three children and 12 adults, with one death; one state project planned.

Commissioner Callahan pointed out that these accidents and deaths to pedestrians were confined exclusively to state highways, largely without sidewalks, and had no relation to city and town streets.

Criticizes 'Abject Failure' In Creating Projects

BOSTON, Dec. 25 (AP) — The Works Progress Administration was criticized tonight by Governor Curley for its "abject failure to properly function not only in the matter of creation of works projects but in the matter of approving payrolls."

Arthur G. Botsch, State WPA Administrator, said tonight that WPA workers who did not receive pay checks before Christmas went without them because they failed to contact their paymasters rather than because Federal Treasury authorities in Boston did not issue them.

The Governor charged that "in every section of Massachusetts and in many other sections of the Nation worthy citizens in dire need have been required to pass through the season of 'Peace on earth to men of good will' without receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

The Governor, in a radio address, cited this condition in support of his contention that planning boards were needed throughout the nation.
Alienists Are Named To Examine Gardner

Drs. A. Warren Stearns and L. Vernon Briggs to Conduct Tests on “Firebug”

(Statehouse, Boston, Dec. 26.—Drs. A. Warren Stearns, former state commissioner of correction, and L. Vernon Briggs, noted alienist, have been assigned to examine Henry Gardner, Worcester firebug, for whom a commutation of prison sentence was recommended to the Governor and Council, it was learned today.

According to officials at the Worcester State Hospital, Gardner is not a pyromaniac. Dr. Francis H. Sleeper, assistant superintendent, in a recent interview, said, “The word pyromaniac is used loosely not only by the layman, but by the medical fraternity as well.”

Pyromania is defined by Webster as “an insane disposition toward incendiarism.” Gardner was found sane and was examined by competent psychiatrists. Dr. Sleeper said, “I would not call the man a pyromaniac.” If he had been found a victim of insane incendiarism by the psychiatrists, he would have been confined to the Worcester State Hospital for an indefinite period, officials said. According to Dr. Sleeper, pyromaniacs are rare.

Curley Fills $207.36 Christmas Basket Gap

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (INS) — Governor Curley dug into his pocket for $207.36 this afternoon because contributions for the 2731 Christmas baskets distributed through his office showed a deficit. A total of 7650 requests for baskets were received by the Governor, but all but 2731 of the applicants were cared for by other agencies.

Curley Will Hear What Goodwin Has to Say

BOSTON, Dec. 26 (A) — Governor James M. Curley took official notice today of a protest of Haverhill shoe workers who urged the ouster of Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles.

“Twill take the matter up with Mr. Goodwin and see what he has to say about it,” Gov. Curley commented.

A committee of Haverhill shoe workers in a telegram signed by Hugh J. Keilher and Clarence P. Tracy, demanded speedy action by the Governor to remove Goodwin for his “un-American and anti-labor activities.” The workers said they resented Goodwin’s activities and intervention into Haverhill industrial affairs and the misuse of a high public office.

Goodwin spoke in Haverhill several nights ago urging Haverhill shoe workers to join the Brockton Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen of which Goodwin is an unpaid advisor.
THE SENATOR SAYS:
New Prison Might Win If Solons Got Inside

Sage Suggests a Touch of Ancient Cells to Stir Votes Of Lawmakers

THE SENATOR:
He sees all and knows all that's going on in Massachusetts politics and most of it he finds amusing or amazing, often both. Best of all, he tells about it.

Meet him below and listen in with him regularly in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The Senator comes in looking as glum and forsaken as a cold boiled potato and he has his overcoat all buttoned up about him like he is cold.

"Merry day-after-Christmas, Senator," says Timmy. "Have you got a bad cold?"

"Thanks, Timmy," says The Senator. "I have not got a cold."

The Senator may not have a cold but it is easy to see he is a very subdued man like something secret and terrible has come into his life.

"No death in the family is there," Senator? asks Timmy.

"No, no. No, indeed," says The Senator. "By the way, here are a few cigars for the boys."

The Senator produces a box of cigars and all of the boys take one because they do not wish to offend The Senator, although everybody knows these are not such a cigar as should be smoked on account of they are a Christmas present.

"Timmy," says The Senator, "do you know how many Christmas cards Governor Jim sent out? No, you do not know, so I will tell you. Governor Jim sent out almost 10,000 Christmas cards. That is a lot of Christmas cards and it must be difficult keeping this list from one year to another."

Everybody agrees that Governor Jim has sent himself out a lot of Christmas cards but still The Senator does not order any drink for himself or any of the boys who are itching to have the same. He is just sitting there gazing in a blank at the row of bottles. Some of the boys light up The Senator's..."
The Senator's cigars die a natural death from lack of breath in them and Timmy opens the transom to air out, but still The Senator is looking like a cold boiled potato and does not order himself a drink or one for the boys. It is easy to see The Senator has a plague.

"Timmy," says The Senator, "the commissioner of corrections, Arthur T. Lyman, who has not yet been reappointed by Governor Jim, is getting a rotten break in that prison trouble, which is just so much ammunition for the few who are trying to prevent his reappointment. So is Warden Frank Lanagan.

The main trouble in the prison is the prison itself because I would not send my dog there if he bit my grandchild, it is that bad, and if we do not get a new prison there is going to be a real trouble over there some day. This is the fault of the boys in the Legislature who do not have to live in the prison. But if some of them get caught, maybe we will have a new prison that the prisoners will be content to stay in without killing the guards.

"Behind the main trouble is the general tightening up of the parole system for which the public should give a large vote of thanks. The day has passed when the governor's council, full of large Parker House steaks and puffing on cigars, votes freedom for a lot of convicts who have been bled white by lawyers.

Ready to Offer Reward

"I will tell you something about Lyman and I will probably have my ear taken off for telling the yarn. After the convicts killed that guard the other night, he was so burned up he wanted to offer a large chunk of his personal fortune as a reward for their quick capture. He mulled it over a long time and was about to do it when it suddenly occurred to him that some folks would misinterpret his action as a political play for favor. So he didn't do it. And maybe he was right, at that."

It is easy to see The Senator is worried because maybe his friend Commissioner Lyman will not be reappointed but even this does not explain the way The Senator is acting, because he is hugging into his overcoat and is not ordering a drink of any kind, and he does not even notice that Timmy is airing out the place after his cigars.

"Timmy," says The Senator, very glum like a cold boiled potato. "If Mayor Freddie is successful in consolidating all those city departments, the man you will probably see at the head of them is Colonel Thomas F. Sullivan, the transit expert. However, Mayor Freddie will be bumping into a lot of trouble before he brings this off, even though the bankers and the Chamber of Commerce boys are for it.

"The Innes group is grooming Ward 4 City Councillor George Roberts to run against Hankus Pankus Parkman in the third Senatorial district..."

"Senator," says Timmy, not being able to stand it any longer, "what ails you? You look like the chief mourner. Why don't you have a little something?"

"Timmy," says The Senator, "I guess I will have a little something. I will have an egg drink—any kind of egg drink, Timmy."

Timmy fixes The Senator a nice egg drink and then suddenly everything is explained. Before he drinks the nice egg drink, The Senator unbuckles his overcoat to expose his tie.

"I positively had to wear it once," apologizes The Senator as Timmy reaches for his smoked glasses.
While Governor Curley called upon him to resign, State WPA Administrator Arthur G. Rotch today explained the payless Christmas of WPA workers in various cities throughout the state.

Workers who formed lines awaiting their pay in the cities did so under a misunderstanding, Rotch said, in defending his administration.

Governor Curley, in a Christmas radio speech, blasted Rotch and said he should resign instead of laying off 1000 "white collar" employees of the WPA administrative force.

The workers who were unpaid on the holiday, Rotch said, did not have money coming to them, while 74,000 of the 77,000 who had money due them were paid on Monday and Tuesday.

The state administrator said he kept his office forces working over the weekend to get the payrolls made out, and all payrolls were disposed of with the exception of about 25 small ones.

CURLEY'S BLAST

Governor Curley took a fling at Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, for the failure to remove Rotch at the demand of Massachusetts political leaders.

"I think it is outrageous for the administration to continue a man in charge of this important program after he has repeatedly proven himself utterly incapable of discharging the duties entrusted to him," said Curley. "It is a terrible burden to impose upon the people of Massachusetts this unwarranted continuance in office of a man who is simply unable to comprehend the task before him and is lacking in the capacity to administer this relief program properly. "He ought to resign instead of asking anyone else to get through."

The proposed dropping of 1000 persons from the administrative offices of the WPA in this state was ordered from Washington in a drastic effort to cut down the overhead. The order becomes effective next week.

A total of 2731 Christmas baskets were distributed to needy families through the organization hastily formed at the State House by Governor Curley.

Mrs. Agnes Parker, whom the Governor named as head of the organization, today reported a checkup of 7650 requests was made with all other agencies to avoid duplication.

The total amount collected, plus 625 baskets at $5 each, was $6110.64, leaving a deficit of $267.36, which the governor will take care of personally.

More than one-third of the requests came from heads of families who, the governor said, were unable to provide for themselves due to failure of the WPA authorities to take care of payrolls.

An audit of the receipts and expenditures, the governor said, will be made of the Christmas basket fund by the State Commission on Administration and Finance.
WPA PAY PROTEST SPREADS

Rotch Told To ‘Resign’ By Curley

“RED-TAPE” ASSAILED

The storm of protest against Arthur G. Rotch, State head of the WPA, and against the pay system, which has been building up since before Christmas, reached gale proportions today.

Governor Curley called on Rotch to resign.

Local disbursing agents disclaimed all responsibility for the payless Christmas which workers in their districts faced.

They blamed Rotch and red tape.

Rotch explained the fact that 2790 pay checks which were to have been sent out in time for Christmas were not delivered by saying that both check-writing machines jammed at the last minute.

But paymasters in the various districts said they didn’t care why the checks weren’t paid. They only knew that their workers went home without pay or food.

In Agawam, which is not paid out of the Springfield district, 280 workers, many of whom had worked all day in the bitter cold, stood in line for hours and then were told that there was no money for them.

The Agawam welfare department gave them food orders.

In Holyoke workers stood in line until 8:30 Tuesday night before they were paid. Then they received only a small amount each.

Many of them had put in a long day, and finally had to drop out of the line and go home payless.

Springfield paid off 2700 workers, but not until a special messenger had been dispatched to Boston for the money, which represented from four to six weeks’ pay.

2900 Checks Due

In Essex County 2900 checks which were due were not received. Of that number about 500 were in Salem. Local officials blamed Boston authorities.

At 9 o’clock Tuesday night food orders were issued, but so late was the announcement made that only about a dozen workers arrived to claim them.

Mayors George J. Bates of Salem said that he was sure that Rotch was doing all he could.

Daniel J. Lynch, in charge of Medford disbursing, paid out all but 75. Those checks he later delivered in person.

By a previous arrangement, the fire department blew whistles when the checks arrived.

Pay Period Ends

In Everett everyone was paid, but only for the pay week ending December 12. Another pay period ends today. Checks are not ready.

In Malden WPA checks arrived in the afternoon. The office closed at 6 o’clock in the evening. George E. Blakesley took the remaining checks home and pinned a notice to his door that he would pay them there.

In Haverhill, where workers were not paid for Christmas, Mayor George B. Dalrymple called on all Massachusetts mayors to protest to Washington against the setup of the WPA system here.

He called the failure of the workers to receive their money “the last straw.”
FIGHT TO KEEP MORAN AT POST

Ruling on Conroy Helps Democratic Defense

Democratic defenses against any effort to oust Senator James G. Moran of Mansfield from the presidency of the State Senate next Wednesday, when the Legislature reconvenes, were strengthened this afternoon when Atty Gen Paul A. Dever advised the State Industrial Accident Board that it could legally grant a leave of absence to Senator William S. Conroy of Fall River.

Senator Conroy, a Democrat, was appointed to the Industrial Accident Board by Gov Curley. Although it is a full time job, Conroy declined to resign his Senatorship, but stated that he would not accept the pay.

Senator Moran, a Republican, and a compromise candidate for the Presidency, has been bitterly attacked by members of his own party during the past year. At one time an effort was made to read him out of the party, and there are rumors to the effect that fellow Republicans will seek to have him removed and a new president elected next Wednesday.

A few weeks ago Senator Conroy asked for a leave of absence without pay from the Industrial Accident board, and last week the board voted to grant the leave if it lay within its powers.

The Attorney General's ruling, which will keep the Democratic total in the Senate to 19 as against 21 nominal Republicans, said that the board could legally grant such an absence "if in the exercise of its judgment it determines that it will be rather than detrimental thereto."

In his ruling, Atty Gen Dever said:

"The acceptance of such a temporary leave will not indicate an intent upon the part of the officeholder to abandon his office, and lacking such an intent no vacancy therein will be worked. When services are not required of an officer for a temporary period, the fact that he performs no services for that period does not constitute an abandonment of his office, nor is his action under such circumstances a violation of the provision contained in the applicable statute that members of the board shall devote their whole time in business hours to the work of the board."

CURLEY ASSAILS W. P. A. DELAY

Declares Many Left in Need Over Christmas

Because the W. P. A. did not function properly in approving payrolls, worthy citizens in dire need in Massachusetts and other sections of the country have been forced to pass through the Christmas season without "the receipt of the money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks," Gov Curley told a radio audience in a Christmas broadcast last night.

He said the "abject failure" of the W. P. A. to function properly not only in the matter of creation of work projects but also in the matter of approving payrolls pointed to the need of planning boards by the nation, state and subdivisions of states.

Planning Boards Essential

"Planning boards are in no sense an innovation in the conduct of either business enterprise or of government itself," he said. "It is accepted that in business no concern conducting its activities on a major scale could survive for a definite period of time without intelligent long-time planning."

The Governor defended the so-called "Brain Trust" as an essential institution for thoughtful planning. He said that the creation of the Federal Planning Board or the so-called "Brain Trust" has resulted in the presentation of a program of social security.

The Governor told of the establishment in Boston 13 years ago of the George Robert White Health Fund Units and said that since 1925 Boston has held first place in public health among 11 of the major cities of the nation.

GOV CURLEY TO BE INITIATED TOMORROW

Gov Curley will be initiated into the Theta Kappa Phi Fraternity tomorrow night at the Hotel Manger at the opening session of the 10th annual convention of this Catholic college fraternity.

The Governor will be given the second and third degrees by a special degree team of delegates from chapters all over the country. After the initiation, Gov Curley will deliver the opening address of the convention which will last three days. Sessions will be held in Boston, Worcester and Durham, N. H.

The convention will close Sunday in Durham. Gov H. Styles Bridges will deliver the closing address.

COMPULSORY, SAYS ROTCH

So Explains White-Collar Transfers, Discharges

Declining this noon any comment upon Gov Curley's proposal that he retire forthwith from the State P. W. A. administration, Arthur G. Rotch explained the reason, which he said is compulsory upon him, for discharge or transfer of scores of white-collar workers, so-called, from the clerical staff.

Administrator Rotch said that from 5 to 6 percent of his allotments, to date, have been apportioned in salaries and wages to this group, but that now this allotment has been by Washington orders reduced to 2½ percent. Thus he must either transfer to regular works projects many of these clerical workers, or else drop them from the rolls, he said.

Pay checks for 79,000 persons on the rolls cleared his office y Christmas Eve, he said, but 2790 other checks did not get through because of a breakdown of the check-writing machine. And in the cases of scores for whom checks were ready, Mr Rotch claims, the paymasters were unable to contact the persons for whom the checks are intended.

Gov Curley this afternoon received a letter from J. Henry Morgan, engineer in chief of W. P. A. projects in Wakefield, in which Mr Morgan said:

"I wish to extend to you the season's greetings and profound thanks of 500 W. P. A. workers in Wakefield for your successful efforts in making it possible for these people to procure their wages which were five weeks overdue."

"Due to Your Excellency's interest in this matter, Wakefield's W. P. A. workers were paid on Saturday, Dec 21."

Gov Curley continued his attack on the W. P. A. administration in this state today, when he announced that of the 2731 Christmas baskets distributed to needy families through his office yesterday, one-third of them went to the heads of families who had failed to receive overdue W. P. A. wages and were thereby destitute.

The Governor said that the total requests for baskets was 7650, but that a check up with other agencies to avoid duplication, had reduced the number actually sent out to 2731 at a cost of $3 each.

The total amount collected was $6110.64, a report submitted by Mrs Agnes Parker showed, and 625 baskets were contributed by Boston merchants. A deficit of $207 was taken care of by the Governor.

Gov Curley announced today that he had received a protest from a group of Haverhill shoe workers demanding the removal of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin, and that he would discuss the matter with Mr Goodwin answering the complaint.

The shoeworkers protested that Mr Goodwin abused his public office and made speeches assailing the American Trade Union. They demanded his removal as "tax payers, honest citizens and honest laborers."
SIDEWALK PROJECTS
FOR “20 WORST SPOTS”

Commissioner Callahan Announces 32 Are Under Way or Planned, 26 by State

There are 32 sidewalk projects under way as a safety measure in the area known as “the 20 worst accident spots” in Massachusetts where 386 pedestrians have been injured and 46 killed on state highways. Commissioner William F. Callahan of the State Department of Public Works announced today.

Of these 32, the State Public Works Department has 16 bond-issue projects in active operation, while the W. P. A. has four. The State has completed two while the W. P. A. has not finished any as yet. The state is planning eight more while the W. P. A. has two planned for this area.

Commissioner Callahan has just completed a survey of these “20 worst spots” from the viewpoint of how pedestrians have fared on state highways which lack suitable sidewalk protection. A two-year period of 1933 and 1934 showed surprising facts, the commissioner stated.

In these 20 towns alone there have been accidents to 130 children and 256 adults. In 17 of the towns there were 46 deaths in that two-year period.

“This is a fairly accurate answer to those who say that highway sidewalks are not needed,” declared Commissioner Callahan, adding that both Gov Curley and he feel that the accident and death rate can be cut down sharply in the coming years after the sidewalks are in use.

The survey made by Commissioner Callahan shows the number of accidents to children and adults in each of the 20 towns, with an analysis of the sidewalk projects as a preventative measure. The commissioner pointed out that these accidents and deaths to pedestrians were confined exclusively to state highways, largely without sidewalks, and had no relation to city and town streets. Here is the result of the two-year survey:

Methuen—Six children and 22 adults, with six deaths; one W. P. A. sidewalk project in operation.

Watertown—Five children and eight adults, no deaths; one current W. P. A. sidewalk project.

North Attleboro—Four children and 10 adults, and one death; W. P. A. plans one project.

Chicopee—Ten children and four adults, no deaths; one W. P. A. project planned.

Randolph—Twelve children and 15 adults, with six deaths; W. P. A. and state each have one project in operation, and the state has a second one planned.

Brockton—Nine children and seven adults with three deaths; W. P. A. and state each have one project in operation and the state has three more planned.

Only State Projects Here

In each of the following 14 communities the W. P. A. has no program, but the state bond issue money is being used or planned for sidewalk projects.

Brookline—Accidents to four children and 24 adults, and one death; one state sidewalk completed.

Dedham—Five children and 11 adults, with five deaths; state has finished one project, has two in operation and one planned.

East Chelmsford—Four children and seven adults, with two deaths; two current state projects.

West Roxbury—Ten children and six adults, with one death; one current state project.

Somerville—Seven children and 13 adults, with one death; one current state project.

Revere—Twenty-two children and 36 adults, with three deaths; three current state projects.

Wellesley—Three children and 11 adults, with three deaths; one current state project.

Billerica—Five children and 15 adults, with two deaths; one current state project.

Andover—Three children and 12 adults, with one death; one state project planned.
GOVERNOR HAS QUIET CHRISTMAS AT HOME

Gov. Curley passed a quiet Christmas yesterday, seeing all of his children and receiving a few personal friends. In the morning he attended Mass at the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes in Jamaica Plain with members of his family.

He called on his daughter, Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly, and then went to Calvary Cemetery to place wreaths on the graves of his wife and children there. He lunched at home and spent the rest of the day there, only leaving to give a short radio broadcast.

UP AND DOWN BEACON HILL

Speedy Investigation

Boston's political circles are distinctly surprised at the speed and thoroughness with which the alleged school graft case is being pressed. Charges of graft and job selling are not unusual, but it is seldom that they lead to any substantial developments or resolutions.

In the present instance, however, the charges have been investigated and indictments voted almost overnight. This has been all the more unexpected as the probe promises to strike at officials high in the school system.

Political observers believe that there is more behind the case than appears on the surface. The key to the situation is undoubtedly to be found in local politics, more especially in the mayoral fight of two years ago, and the one to be fought two years hence. The vigorous prosecution of the case is seen as an effort to build up the popularity of one candidate while discrediting another.

Old Scores Recalled

In the close mayoralty fight of 1933, the present District Attorney, William J. Foley, lost the election by some 10,000 votes. It has been estimated that a large number of these were lost in South Boston through the efforts of Dr. Charles E. Mackey, member of the Boston School Committee. District Attorney Foley is reported to have felt very strongly his rejection by a district that he considered his stronghold and upon which he depended to give him a strong lead. It is not unnatural therefore that Mr. Foley should feel an interest in vigorously prosecuting a case, which may conceivably, through reflecting discredit on the School Committee, also reflect on a man whom he holds partly responsible for his defeat.

The Next Election

It is probable, however, that there is more behind Mr. Foley's determination to push the investigation than merely a desire to repay old political wounds. If Mr. Foley decides to be a candidate again for Mayor, one of his strongest opponents will probably be Maurice J. Tobin, also a member of the School Committee.

Any irregularities which can be proved in regard to the administration of school affairs, even though the School Committee knew nothing about them, is sure to reflect upon every member of that body. If, in the next mayoral campaign, it is impossible to accuse Mr. Tobin of being implicated in job selling, it will be possible to charge him with not knowing what was transpiring in his department. It will be an unusual campaign if these charges of incompetence are not hurled.

Campaign Contributions

Charges of job selling and forcing employees of city departments to contribute to the campaign funds of officials of these departments are not infrequent in most cities where political posts are regarded as sources of revenue, rather than as public trusts. Yet the flood of public interest, as expressed in the newspapers, has been astounding in this case. Boston has always taken great pride in its school system, and has always been most generous in its appropriations to it. It is only natural, therefore, that when charges are made of maladministration that the citizens of Boston demand that they be cleared up at once.

Whitewash Impossible

It is clear that, even though influence were brought to bear upon District Attorney Foley to "sandbag" the probe, and such influence is most likely in a case involving so much local politics, he could not do so without discrediting himself irrevocably in the eyes of the voters of Boston.

District Attorney Foley has, on the other hand, the chance to win for himself some of that favorable publicity that all politicians dream about. Many a successful man in public life has used the cleaning up of graft as a springboard to higher office. With his name on the front page of every paper and with the cleaning up of a situation close to the heart of every parent in Boston to his credit, Mr. Foley has the opportunity to pick up many of those 10,000 votes at the next mayoral election in 1937.

J. G. H.
Light Rates—Sliding Scale Gets Indorsement

Governor Curley in his 1934 inaugural message favored the sliding scale system of public utility rate making, gas and electricity. The case was weakened by lack of concrete proof of possible savings it would provide for Massachusetts consumers. Today the Public Franchise League produced that proof.

In a memorandum sent to the special commission studying the sliding scale plan, the league pointed to a possible 11½ per cent saving for Worcester Electric Light Company customers had the system been employed in 1934.

The league revealed that during 1932, 1933, and 1934 the company paid $8,480,000 in dividends on a total capital investment of $4,038,232, an average annual dividend of 19.5 per cent. A $2,350,000 surplus was also accumulated. Excessive rates were pointed out as making this possible.

The report continued, in part: "If the rates of the company in 1934 had been computed upon the money actually invested in the company by its stockholders, the domestic and commercial consumers would have received an annual reduction from the actual 1934 rate of 11 per cent... the company would still have earned 12 per cent upon the invested capital."

If any sliding scale is to be recommended, it should be so designed that the rates... will permit the company to earn enough to assure sufficient service to the public, and to permit the payment in dividends of a fair return upon the money invested in the business by the stockholders—but no more."

WPA—Check Writing Machine Holds Up Pay

It was hard today to sift political rumor from fact in reports of WPA workers not receiving checks in time for Christmas. Breakdown on Tuesday of a check writing machine was blamed today by Arthur G. Rotch, WPA chief, for delay in issuance of paychecks, but he said that only 2700 were held up while 75,000 were issued.

Chief contributing difficulty to the situation seems to have been widely circulated reports, published prior to Christmas, that all WPA workers in the state would receive pay before the holiday. As a consequence a large proportion of the 120,000 on WPA rolls expected checks. As a matter of fact, Mr. Rotch said today, only some 71,000 actually had checks coming to them, but when the others did not receive their pay they clamored about their disappointment at not receiving money.

Governor Curley learned of their disappointment and went on the radio last night to assuage what he considered Mr. Rotch's failure to properly pay those on the WPA. Mr. Rotch's explanation was given this morning.

CURLEY BLASTS ROTCH

Calls Upon Him to Quit Job Rather Than Fire 1000

Incensed by the Christmas Eve breakdown of the federal relief administration here which forced thousands of Massachusetts WPA workers to go payless over the holiday, Governor Curley last night called upon Relief Administrator Arthur G. Rotch to resign himself instead of ordering the discharge of 1000 "white-collared" men and women for New Year's Day.

RETENTION "OUTRAGEOUS"

The Governor took a dig at the refusal of Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins to heed the demands from Massachusetts political leaders for the removal of State Administrator Rotch from this position here. The retention of Mr. Rotch by the administration was characterized by the Governor as "outrageous."

"I think it is outrageous for the administration," he stated, "to continue a man in charge of this important programme after he has repeatedly proven himself utterly incapable of discharging the duties entrusted to him."

Imposes Burden Upon People

"It is a terrific burden to Impose upon the people of Massachusetts this unwarranted continuance in office of a man who is simply unable to comprehend the task before him and is lacking in the capacity to administer this relief programme properly."

"He ought to resign instead of asking anyone else to get through," said the Governor in commenting on the proposed discharge of 1000 more workers on New Year's Day, mostly men and women in clerical and other jobs who, it is claimed, might well be transferred to the paymasters and the accounting divisions.

From One to Six Weeks

"We have seen in the past six weeks," said the Governor, "the abject failure of the works progress administration to function properly, not only in the matter of the creation of works projects but in the matter of approving payrolls with the result that in every section of Massachusetts, worthy citizens in dire need have been required to pass through the season of Peace on earth to men of good will without the receipt of money due them for labor performed, ranging from one to six weeks."

Because of the failure of the WPA to pay off its workers here, the Governor said that of the 3200 families to whom he supplied Christmas dinners, half of them were victims of the unfair and incapable relief administration.
Greater Boston Illuminated by Brilliant Christmas Displays

Here is the handsome Jamaica way mansion of Governor Curley, as it was illuminated last night, with lights gleaming from every window.

THE GOVERNOR'S HOME A BLAZE OF LIGHTS

Brilliant, multi-colored lights, daily proclaiming the joy of Christmas, seemed to cover Boston and its suburbs last night, the greatest Yule illumination in years.

Stars of Bethlehem gleamed over doorways and gorgeous trees. Some yards had as many as three and four trees, all covered with colored lights. The illumination was especially fine last night in Jamaica Plain, along the Fenway and the Arborway, one of the sights being the yard and home of Governor Curley, at Morains street, and the Jamaica way.

The Tomasello homes—those of Joseph A. and Samuel, also in Jamaica Plain, were brilliantly illuminated, each of them having several trees in the yard. The home of Joseph is at 230 Pond street and Samuel's home at 41 Arbor way.

In the downtown section police headquarters in Berkeley street was alive with electrical candles from top to bottom. A statistically inclined person discovered that nearly 2000 bulbs gleamed from the windows of police headquarters. The State House and City Hall also were agleam.

As usual, brilliant illuminations were to be seen through the Newtons, Roxbury, Medford, Cambridge, Somerville and Arlington.

The State House shone behind a brilliant electric sign which glared forth the greetings of the Commonwealth, the signature of Governor Curley appearing in huge facsimile on the bottom. The Boston City Hall was also lighted.

Suburbanites transformed their gardens into bowers of lights and trees. All over Greater Boston hundreds of automobilists took advantage to drive around to see the displays.

CONVICTS NOW WELL ARMED

Underworld Tip Says They Raided Gun Shop---Also Supplied With Money by Girl Friend

BY LESTER ALLEN

On a direct tip from an underworld leader that the two escaped convicts, Edward Guarnelli and Antonio Repucci, who killed Guard Walter R. Doucette of State prison Monday night, have armed themselves by looting an ammunition store, Boston detectives hunting for the killers were last night equipped with bullet-proof vests. They also located a girl believed to have supplied Guarnelli with money.

GIRLS' HOMES WATCHED

The tip from the underworld source received by police of the North End station disclosed that because of the nature of their crime the two killers, who overpowered and killed Doucette in a taxi cab as he was taking them from Dedham Corners to the state prison, have been denied shelter by their underworld friends and from now on are liable to be betrayed from their own former companions.

As Boston, Everett and Revere police watched three girls with whom the missing men had been changing letters, Boston detectives working with Newton police set a watch on a Newton mansion, to which telephone calls by Guarnelli had been traced, and where a former sweetheart of the killer is employed. The girl, police declare, has supplied Guarnelli with money. As a result of the information that directed police surveillance to the Newton girl, Sergeant James V. Crowley dropped the probe of the Rhode Island clues to the present whereabouts of Guarnelli, and began a search for the girl in Everett.

Guard on Newton Mansion

Meanwhile, at the request of the girl's employer, a heavy police guard was set upon the Newton mansion, when it was learned that jewels valued at thousands of dollars are kept in the house, and it was feared that word of the small fortune might have leaked to the underworld. Police stated that in probing the girl's past employers they learned that she had used two different names. They also learned, it was stated, that she was in Everett on Tuesday afternoon to keep an appointment made by telephone with a man, and that yester-

Police Act on Tip That Convicts May Be Hiding in Italian Colony

GLoucester, Dec. 25—Although most convinced that the tip that Antonio Repucci, fugitive killer-convict, is hiding in the Italian quarter here is a case of mistaken identity, City Marshal Daniel M. Casey tonight ordered that a close watch be kept over the district.

Inasmuch as the convict is well acquainted with many local fishermen here the lookout will be maintained in the event that he and his pal, Edward Guarnelli, should attempt to flee to Nova Scotia, or to Southern ports aboard a fishing schooner.

Led by Russell Moody, Gloucester detective, a squad of local police, who hastily changed from uniforms to plain clothes, made a search of "the fort," Italian section of this port early today, following the receipt of a tip by Assistant City Marshal Charles L. O'Malley over the phone. O'Malley revealed that the tipster is known to him and is "a reliable character.

The assistant marshal notified Boston police officials and the $1000 reward offered by Governor Curley spurred the police in the search.

Police of the North End station also searched the fishing boats tied up at the wharf because of the fact that Repucci has a relative who is a fisherman.

The fact that two notorious housebreakers are at large caused a deluge of false alarms from householders in a dozen Metropolitan Boston cities and towns. Every suspicious-looking man idling at any point in the Metropolitan area was likely to have a policeman step up and ask a few pertinent questions.

It is the belief of the police that the men are separated and are in separate hiding places, but are maintaining their contact so that if one gets a state to make a dash for a section of the country the other can share the money.

The shoot-to-kill order issued by Boston police officials and the $100 reward offered by Governor Curley spurred the police in the search.

BOSTON'S CHRISTMAS IS THE MOST BOUNTIFUL IN MANY YEARS

INSTITUTIONS AND HOSPITALS SHARE CHEER

Lacking only the traditional white background, the most bountiful Christmas in years was celebrated in Greater Boston yesterday.

As a result of the activities of scores of charitable organizations, institutions and individuals, the Yuletide spirit was brought to practically every home, together with the shut-ins at the hospitals, the needy and the friendless.

After an active Christmas Eve, Governor Curley spent a quiet day at his Jamaica way home, surrounded by his children. A visit was made to the grave of Mrs. Curley in Calvary Cemetery. Dinner was served at 1:30 with Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Donnelly and members of the Donnelly family sitting down with the Governor and his four sons, Paul, Leo, George and Francis.

Inmates of all city institutions enjoyed full turkey dinners with all the fixin's including candy and fruit, and movies were shown at Charles Street Jail, Deer Island and Long Island Hospital.

CURLEY MESSAGE

A special Christmas message by Governor Curley appeared on the program of the patients of state hospitals and children in welfare institutions.

At State Prison the more than 900 inmates had for their Christmas dinner roast pork, squash, potatoes, mince pie and coffee.

The City of Boston also acted as Santa Claus for many of those dependent on it. Patients and inmates at Long Island each received a gift, and the welfare department gave 1500 presents to city wards living in private homes.

Dr. James W. Manary, head of the City Hospital, said most of the 1200 patients were able to enjoy the turkey dinner, which was also served at the Boston Sanatorium.

A program of entertainment in addition to the turkey dinner was also arranged for the women and children at the Temporary Home for Women on Chardon st. The Welfare Department arranged with the Salvation Army and the Volunteers of America to assist in providing turkey dinners for homeless men on the city's relief rolls.

MAYOR PLAYS SANTA

Mayor and Mrs. Mansfield played Santa to the patients and inmates at Long Island.

Eighty boys and girls at the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children in Newton Centre were given presents and a bountiful dinner.

At noon the Salvation Army served a Christmas dinner to 75 children at the Settlement and Day Nursery, 17 Stanford st., West End, following the distribution of baskets to 2100 needy families. The Volunteers of America gave baskets to 500 old persons, and provided a dinner for 200 unemployed men.

Governor to Query Goodwin on Protest

Commenting today on the protest of Haerhill shoe workers against the participation of Frank A. Goodwin, registrar of motor vehicles, in a labor union controversy in that city, Governor Curley said: "I will take the matter up with Mr. Goodwin and see what he has to say about it."

The shoe workers had protested to the governor that the registrar had misused his public office in engaging in the dispute.

2731 Baskets Sent by Governor's Office

Mrs. Agnes Parker, in charge of collection of funds at the State House for Christmas baskets distributed by the governor's office, submitted her report today, saying:

"The total requests received for baskets was 7650. A check was made with other agencies engaged in the distribution of Christmas baskets in order to avoid duplication, so that the total number distributed through the office of the governor was 2731, at a cost of $3 per basket. The total amount collected was $8110.64, plus contributions of 625 baskets, leaving a deficit of $207.36 which will be taken care of by his excellency.

"The interesting feature in connection with requests for Christmas baskets was that more than one-third of the entire requests were from heads of families who, through failure to receive the wages due them under the W P A, were unable to provide for the needs of those dependents on them."
Accident Spots / Chosen for 32 State Sidewalks

Public Works Department
Picks Sites Where 46 Have Been Killed, 386 Hurt

Thirty-two sidewalk projects, including the "twenty worst accident spots" in Massachusetts, where 386 pedestrians have been injured and forty-six killed, and 294 have been undertaken as a safety measure, according to announcement today by William F. Callahan, state commissioner of public works.

Of these projects, the Public Works Department has sixteen in active operation and the WPA has four. The State has completed two and is planning eight more, while the WPA has planned two for this area.

Commissioner Callahan, who has made a survey of the accidents which occurred on State highways which lacked suitable sidewalk protection, reported that in the two-year period of 1933 and 1934 the number of accidents was "a fairly conclusive answer to those who say that sidewalks are not needed." He said that both he and Governor Curley believed that the accident rate could be sharply reduced by the construction of sidewalks.

Analysis of Projects

The survey made by Commissioner Callahan shows the number of accidents to children and adults at each of the locations with an analysis of the sidewalk projects as a preventive measure as follows:

- METHUEN—Six children and twenty-two adults, with six deaths; one WPA sidewalk project in operation.
- WATERTOWN—Five children and eight adults, no deaths; one current WPA sidewalk project.
- NORTH ATTLEBORO—Four children and ten adults, and one WPA project planned.
- CHICOPEE—Ten children and four adults, no deaths; one WPA project planned.
- RANDOLPH—Twelve children and fifteen adults, with six deaths; WPA and State each have one project in operation, and the State has a second one planned.
- BROCKTON—Nine children and seven adults, with three deaths; WPA and State each have one project in operation, and the State has three more planned.
- DEDHAM—Five children and eleven adults, with five deaths; State has finished one project, has two in operation and one planned.
- WEST ROXBURY—Ten children and six adults, with one death; one current State project.
- SOMERVILLE—Seven children and thirteen adults, with one death; one current State project.
- REVERE—Twenty-two children and thirty-six adults, with three deaths; three current State projects.
- BRAINTEER—Three children and eleven adults, with three deaths; one current State project.
- ATTLEBORO—Five children and fifteen adults, with two deaths; one current State project.
- BILLERICA—Five children and fifteen adults, with two deaths; one State project planned.
- NORTH Chelmsford—Six children and three adults, no deaths; one current State project.
- AUBURN—Four children and ten adults, with three deaths; one State project planned.
- WELLESLEY—Four children and fourteen adults, with three deaths; one current State project.
- SAUGUS—Two children and thirteen adults, with four deaths; one current State project.
- ANDOVER—Three children and twelve adults, with one death; one State project planned.

Commissioner Callahan pointed out that these accidents and deaths to pedestrians were confined exclusively to State highways, largely without sidewalks, and had no relation to city and town streets.

Raisers to Bring Goats to the Front

at Rural Meeting in Worcester, Jan. 8

Goat raising is advancing to such importance in Massachusetts that its problems will be taken up for consideration at the next Union agricultural meeting, which opens in the Worcester Memorial Auditorium on Jan. 8 for a three-day session.

In the eighteen years that practically all the rural organizations in the State have held a yearly meeting together, this is the first time that goat raisers have been included. This time they will have a session of their own, on Friday morning, Jan. 10, and will be addressed by Will Twalt, secretary of the American Milk Goat Record Association on the subject, "Bringing Goats to the Front."

There is a New England Goat Breeders' Association whose president, A. F. A. Lombard, will speak on "Goats from Ancient to Modern Times." The question of forming a State Federated Goat Association will be discussed.

About twenty-five organizations will participate in the union meeting, assembling to discuss separately for their annual business transactions and jointly for discussion of problems which they have in common. There will be a trade show, a competitive apple show and State departmental exhibits and, according to A. W. Lombard, of the Department of Agriculture, who has charge of the arrangements for the meeting, all the exhibition space in the building has been sold and allotted.

He says about 10,000 persons are expected.

The Massachusetts Potato and Onion Growers Association will take part in the meeting for the first time.

The new commissioner of agriculture, Howard Haines Murphy, will attend the banquet on Thursday evening, where Governor James C. Sullivan will speak, and this will give the commissioner his first opportunity to meet the agricultural leaders of the State. Arthur F. Pillsbury will speak on "Miracles in Nature." The management of this agricultural institute has been trying for five years to obtain him as a speaker.

Organizations which have joined in the three-day program are the New England Sheep and Wool Growers' Association, Massachusetts Federation of Poultry Associations, the Farm Bureau Federation, the Jersey Cattle Club, Eastern Shorthorn Breeders' Association, New England Brown Swiss Breeders' Association, Milk Inspectors' Association, Fruit Growers' Association, the Veterinary Association, Worcester County Poultry Association, State Federation of Beekeepers, Holstein Breeders' Association, Home Economics Division of the State College, Federated Dairy Association, State Vegetable Growers Association, Massachusetts Arborists' Association, Farm Roadside Stands Association, Association of New England Milk Producers, Massachusetts Council of the N. E. M. P. A., Massachusetts Goat Growers, Massachusetts Department of Conservation and the Fire Fighting Conference.

Vast Majority of WPA Men Got Their Pay

76,210 Checks Turned Over to Workers Christmas Eve, Rotch Reports

Of the 79,000 pay checks due last Monday and Tuesday to WPA workers all over the State 37,990 remained in the office of the U.S. Treasury division office in Boston at the end of the day's work Christmas Eve, and some of them are still in the office.

All the other checks, or 76,210, had been delivered to the paymasters of the WPA jobs and were turned over to the workers except in instances where the paymasters could not reach the workers. Some of the workers were not reached because it was a holiday, and they were not on their jobs in the afternoon.

This information was reported today to Arthur G. Rotch, State administrator of the WPA and the explanation given by the Treasury Department office for the failure of the 3799 checks to go out was that at the end of the day's work the check-writing machines in the office broke down and could not at that time be repaired. No technical labor was available to repair the wires. The machines have since been repaired and the mill is working again, turning out more checks for the next payrolls.

Many of the complaints about the new payroll have come, says Mr. Rotch, from people who were not entitled to receive their pay before Christmas. They probably had no pay to receive. Mr. Rotch, that their money would come because the three checks would be sent in and the payroll reviewed. The fact was that no payment was due by Christmas Eve on any payroll received in the administration office at the end of Friday night, which had been frequently explained by Mr. Rotch.

The jammer of the check-writing machine was not responsible for the holdup of all the 3799 checks left in the Treasury Department division office. Some of the checks could not be out of overdraft.

The cut down has been ordered from Washington and I must reduce my administrative cost to 2% per cent. Of my monthly allotment. "No, the reduction cannot be a person of need. Rather, it will be made on the basis of the individual to the work required. Of course, if two persons are equally qualified for a particular task, then the need will be retained," Rotch stated.

Further, Rotch explained the proposed cut-down in administrative staff at WPA headquarters, Park Square building. "The cut down has been ordered from Washington and I must reduce my administrative cost to 2% per cent. Of my monthly allotment. "No, the reduction cannot be made on the basis of need. Rather, it will be made on the basis of the individual to the work required. Of course, if two persons are equally qualified for a particular task, then the need will be retained," Rotch stated.

The discharge of possibly more than 300 workers must be made the first of the year in order to reduce the costs from about $150,000 to 2% per cent. The ERA cost was figured at from five to six per cent.

First cuts will be made in such departments as the project, classification and other such divisions that do not require as much help from now on as they did in the pre-holiday rush and during the shift from ERA to WPA.

Concerning the confusion that existed in some cities and towns on Christmas Eve, Rotch said, "76,000 checks cleared here, and the treasury division reported to me this morning that only 2790 checks remained in this building over the holiday. True, that is a great number of checks. They represent about 1600 that couldn't be written as the check-writing machines broke down and couldn't be repaired Tuesday night. "The balance were checks that were delayed there because of errors. I had been told that all would be cleared and sent to the respective paymasters in the districts. Many who complained, the records show, were persons not entitled to pay, as their work fortnight was not up. Beyond that, reports this morning indicate that because of the stopping of projects for a half-holiday many were prevented from getting in touch with their paymasters, and so many checks were held over that could have been paid," he continued.

At headquarters, the work of reducing the force has already begun and several departments have been decreased in number. Rotch was unable to state just how many would comprise the WPA office force when the slash had been made.

At the State House Gov. Curley made public a report given him by Mrs. Agnes Parker, who was in charge of contributions and the handling of the Governor's Xmas basket fund. Of the 2731 baskets given out, more than one-third went to heads of families on the WPA who were unable to collect wages due them," Gov. Curley stated.

There were 7650 requests for baskets but a check-up with other agencies distributing such baskets reduced the number delivered to 2731. The Parker report showed that $6,110.64 was collected. As each basket cost $3, there is a deficit of $207.37 which the Governor will pay himself. He has directed Charles P. Gov. Curley also made public a letter dated Dec. 24, from Henry J. Morgan, WPA engineer at Wakefield headquarters of the Essex county district. Manning stated that only 1600 persons are employed in Lynn, although 3100 jobs were promised by the WPA. Boston head-quarters reported that Lynn has rec-ceived an equitable share of the work. Mayor Manning then pointed out that unless more jobs can be found for Lynn, the city will be forced to spend $25 to $30,000 more for re-lief next year.

Referring to WPA salary difficulties in Massachusetts, the Governor said: "The necessity for such an organization has been amply demonstrated during the past six weeks in the subject of the failure of the works progress administration to properly function not only in the matter of the creation of works projects but in the matter of approving payrolls, with the result that in every section of Massachusetts and in many other sections of the country worthy citizens in dire need have been required to pass through the season of 'peace on earth to men of good will' without the receipt of money due them for work performed."

The Governor gave the federal planning board or "brain trust" all the credit for the country's new social security program, with its assurance not only for the aged, but also for the blind and the crippled.
BOTCH DENIES CURLEY CHARGE

Asserts Projects Started Soon as Cash Is Ready; 300 to Lose Jobs

BULLETIN (latest)
Some $18,000 in WPA checks was distributed today to 500 workers on five projects in Newton. About 80 of the men got checks for the last three weeks. Distribution was made at the various jobs. Some of the men danced for joy when they received their checks.

Refusing to comment on Gov. Curley's latest demand that he resign, Administrator Arthur G. Rotch today did defend his office and declared "the Governor is wrong." He started every one we have money for.

Further, Rotch explained the proposed cut-down in administrative staff at WPA headquarters, Park Square building.

The cut-down has been ordered from Washington and I must reduce my administrative cost to 2½ per cent. of my monthly allotment. "No, the reduction cannot be made on the basis of the need. Rather, it will be made on the basis of the individual to the work required. Of course, it two persons are equally qualified for a particular task, then the needler will be retained," Rotch stated.

The discharge of possibly more than 300 workers must be made the first of the year in order to reduce the cost from about 4½ per cent. to 2½ per cent. The ERA cost was figured at from five to six per cent. First cuts will be made in such departments as the project, classification and other such divisions that do not require much help from new staff as they did in the pre-holiday rush and during the shift from ERA to WPA.

TO START WORK ON NEW HIGHWAY
(Special to the Traveler)
CARVER, Dec. 26—The state board of public works will start work at once on a new highway through Carver to the county seat, from connections at the North Lakeville rotary. Representative Ira Ward of Plymouth appealed to the selectmen of towns along the route and to Gov. Curley.

This highway will connect the route for traffic from lower New England, New York and southern and western states. The route as laid out runs through woodland, striking Middleboro over the old roadbed of the Middleboro & Plymouth branch railroad, through North and East Carver.
M'GRATH TO PLAN ROOSEVELT BALL
Gov. Curley today designated City Councilman Joseph McGrath, chairman of the Democratic state committee, as active chairman of the Massachusetts committee to arrange for the birthday ball for President Roosevelt. McGrath will be assisted by Democratic office holders in federal, state and municipal service in Massachusetts.

Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever ruled this afternoon that the industrial accident board was within its rights in granting to Senator William Conroy of Fall River a leave of absence from his position on the board as long as the Legislature is in session. Senator Conroy was named to the commission by Gov. Curley. He recently asked for a leave of absence from that position, which the board granted.

BUZZARDS BAY, Dec. 26—Uncle Sam has opened his purse strings to the extent of $120,000 approval has been given for the building of a national guard camp in the upper Cape, and soon hundreds of acres of woodlands in the Bourne, Falmouth, Sandwich districts will be humming with activity for Cape Cod's military camp is a certainty.

Engineers are now busily engaged surveying the large tract selected for the site. Ten surveyors with 25 helpers are working at scattered points such as Hatchville, North Falmouth, and other places. The larger portion of the land lies in the town of Bourne, with small sections projecting into Falmouth and Sandwich.

Erection of buildings, it is stated, will follow the clearing of woodlands and construction of roads.

Strenuous objection at first was voiced to the location of a national guard camp here, but this has dwindled or has been greatly subdued. Early polls regarding the attitude of the citizens toward the camp showed 1,586 opposed and 134 in favor. Despite all the opposition, the land was purchased with state funds, through a joint agreement with the war department, last October.

The bone of contention of the part of opponents of the measure was the allegation that the camp would ruin the primitive appearance of the district and that the presence of soldiers and sightseers would be detrimental to the Cape's summer resort interests.

The Cape Cod camp will be the national guard headquarters of the East, replacing Fort Devens, which is to be abandoned as soon as the Cape project is ready. The survey will continue throughout the winter, weather permitting, and it is expected the first spring days will see the start of actual building, with thousands of carpenters, laborers and other tradesmen working at top speed to make the camp one of the finest of its kind in the east.
