Message from the President

LINDSAY SEARS

Sodales,

The pandemic may be ongoing, things may continue to feel uncertain -- and for those reasons, I'm writing to encourage you to renew your membership in the Classical Association of New England and to get involved in the organization.

Your membership in CANE supports many great resources and your access to them:

- Grants and scholarships for teachers and students in New England, including you!;
- CANE's major annual events, the Annual Meeting and the CANE Summer Institute, and subsidies for attendees;
- CANE's activities throughout the year, such as the "Virtually Unprepared" series
- Advocacy for Classics programs throughout New England;
- The New England Classical Journal, CANE's own publication;
- Access to JSTOR and the Loeb Classical Library online, as well as the shared materials and resources from the annual meeting;
- And, most importantly, the collegiality and community of a regional network of teachers and scholars who understand the intellectual value of our work and its social significance.

CANE offers so much for a low-cost membership fee – I hope you'll renew and remain a part of this vital organization. Thank you!

Sincerely,
Lindsay Sears
President
